Workshops introduce families to World Wide Web

BY HEIDI RIEDNER
Correspondent

Families have a number of issues to deal with on a daily basis and sometimes everyone needs a little help and support.

And with more kids surfing the Net, often unsupervised, parents worry what their kids may be viewing without guidance or explanation.

A lot of seniors feel increasingly isolated from their grandchildren, some not knowing the first thing about the World Wide Web or how to communicate via e-mail.

As a result, Shaw Communications is holding free seminars during October, offering strategies for dealing with the Internet.

Two seminars will be held at the Thornhill Community Centre Oct. 13 and 20 of particular interest to seniors.

"The focus will be on the seniors' community and we will demonstrate how convenient and easy the Internet is to use and how it can be used to keep in touch with family and friends, both locally and abroad," says Michelle Bacon of Shaw Communications.

In addition, topics discussed will include issues of security, on-line banking and trading, e-mail and search engines.

"We'll look at the basics, as well as concerns they may have regarding secu-city," explained Bacon. "Often people fear that someone else will have access to their personal information when they go on-line and that's a major issue, but they also don't realize what's available to them either, like international newspapers."

General information seminars will also be held Oct. 16 and 17 at Shaw Demonstration Centre in Scarborough, and Oct. 17 at Shaw Communications in Richmond Hill.

But the focus will be on preventing children from accessing certain sites that parents may deem inappropriate.

"A lot of families are concerned with control issues and worrying that their children may be viewing sights they don't want them to see," says Bacon.

Various blocking programs will be discussed including X-Stop, Net Nanny and Cyber Patrol, which are available through Internet browsers.

Seminars take place Oct. 13 and 20, 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m., at the Community Centre located at 7755 Bayview Ave. in Thornhill. Scarborough location is at the Shaw Demonstration Centre, Oct. 14 and 16, 6:30 and 8 p.m. on Thursday and 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m. Saturday. The Oct. 17 seminar will take place at 10 a.m., 12 noon and 2 p.m. at Shaw Communications, 244 Newkirk Rd., Richmond Hill. For information, call (905) 780-7052.
