

PRESSING BUSINESS

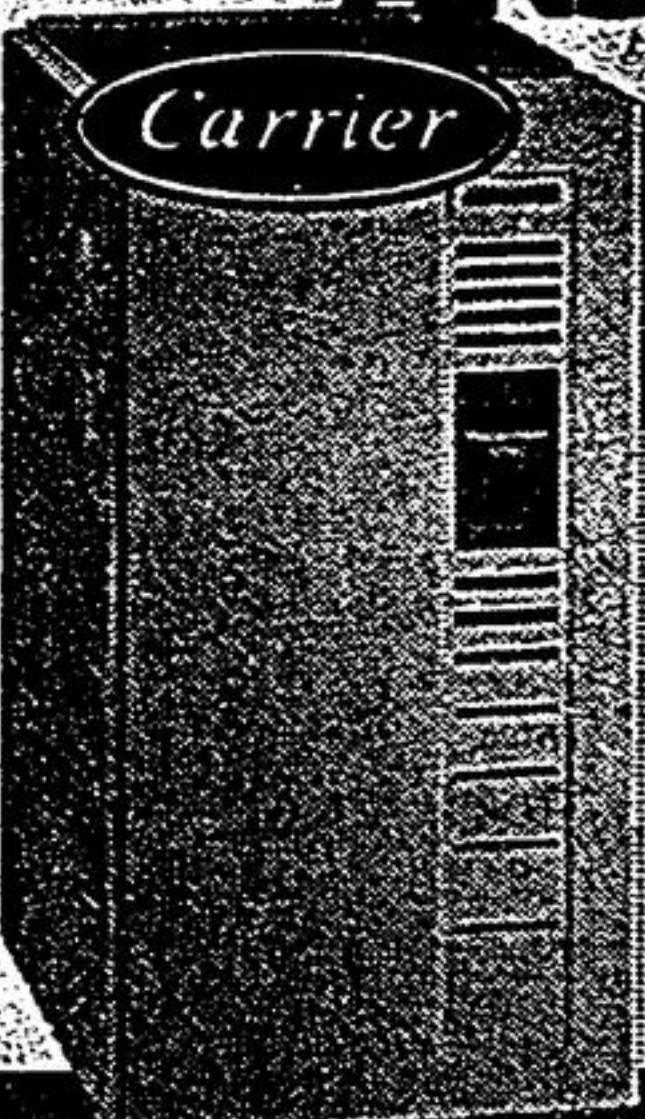

STAFF PHOTO/SIGERD WITTEVEEN

Stephen Sword, volunteer printing press operator at Markham Museum, uses antique Economist & Sun equipment in the Ink to Internet exhibit which officially opens today and runs to March 31. The interactive exhibit traces 200 years of communications technology, featuring such artifacts as quill and ink, crank and dial phones and a telegraph system. Visitors can learn to use a 19th century printing press and get their name in a newspaper headline. The museum is on Hwy. 48, north of 16th Avenue. Call 294-4576 for details.
