Midlife Crisis rocks at Ride for Sight

Stouffville-based band Midlife Crisis will be playing two charity events in the next few weeks. This Friday, the six-piece band will be in Collingwood playing at the Ride for Sight.

John Bouwmeister, who joined the band last year, says this is the fifth consecutive year the group has played the Ride for Sight, which also features Kim Mitchell on Saturday night.

Midlife Crisis, which Bouwmeister describes as R & B, soul, blues, funk and rock and roll, will also be playing at the Strawberry Festival July 1 and giving the money back to the town.

The other members of the band are Jy Fairlie, Dave Chester, Ross Carter, Wally Mateze and Richard Thornton.

Bouwmeister says the band plays at many charitable events, helping out needy causes and raising the band's profile.
