

We're looking for families

From the bustling Hwy. 7 corridor to the sleepy shores of Lake Simcoe, York Region boasts incredible diversity.

With 700,000 residents, the region has a booming commercial and industrial sector in the south that rivals any medium-sized Canadian city. In the north, farming and tourism still dominate the economic and social fabric.

But what defines the region's diversity more than anything else are its people.

What does the average family on the shores of Lake Simcoe have in common with a family in Markham, Stouffville or Woodbridge? Are they even aware they're part of the same vast region?

The Economist & Sun/Tribune is looking for two families — one in the north, one in the south — to help us illustrate York Region's diversity.

If you're interested, call Rick Vanderlinde at 905-881-3373 or 1-800-565-6357, or contact by e-mail at rvanderlinde@theliberall.com.

YOUR OPINION COUNTS

This week's yrg.com survey question deals with your tax dollars. In presenting his $94.5-million budget request — which includes an $8-million increase to pay for 30 more officers — to York Regional council, police chief Robert Middaugh said policing isn't a high priority with citizens because of the region's "reasonable crime rate." Is he right? Yes or no?

We'll bring you the results next week.
