According to one estimate, up to half the parking spots at the Centennial Community Centre on McCowan Road will be gobbled up each weekday by commuters using a GO station planned for the area.

Wong: New Markham station needed as soon as possible entrance should be built. This week, Regional Councillor Tony Wong predicted it will be "a nightmarish job" trying to make the parking plan work, but said the new station was needed as soon as possible.

Ward 4 Councillor George McKelvey, however, said the plan is excellent and the segregated parking is easy to monitor. If a car is in the lot more than four hours, it's most likely a GO passenger, he said.

McNeil said local GO passengers need more parking spaces. The lot at GO's Main Street, Markham station is usually filled. Unionville's station, with a newly expanded lot, is typically half-filled.
