MAYOR HELPS RE-OPEN STATION

Markham Mayor Don Cousens and young friend Devon Loughridge, both suitably attired, were on hand for last weekend's official re-opening of Markham's 141-year-old train station. Many volunteer fundraising and renovation hours went into the project.

Jacobs earns seniors award

Markham's prestigious Seniors Hall of Fame Award is going to Unionville's Stuart H. Jacobs this year for his long-term contributions to the town.

Jacobs, 80, will receive his award Sunday at the town's Volunteer Celebration and Corn Roast. More than 1,500 volunteers and their guests are expected at the afternoon event at the civic centre, which includes an appearance by Markham MP John McCallum.

Jacobs and wife, Lois, were founding members of the Unionville Conservation and Development Society.

Through the 1950s, Jacobs was treasurer and warden at St. Phillips Anglican Church and president of the Unionville Curling Club.

In 1988, Jacobs worked with the Literacy Council of York Simcoe, eventually becoming its director. He started the Markham/Stouffville chapter and served as president until retiring in 1998.

Meritorious awards will go to Lois Clarridge and Warren Carroll while Certificates of Appreciation will be presented to Trudy Tatangelo, Margaret Lee and Paul Mingay.

The celebration runs from 2 to 4:30 p.m., at 101 Town Centre Boulevard.

What do you think of Markham's future?

What do you think of Markham's future? That's what we want to know.

The Town of Markham is launching "Engage 21st Century Markham," a program that will examine the future of the town. As the official media sponsor, the Economist & Sun is producing a special section on the program.

And we need your help. We want your opinions in writing.

What do you want Markham to look like in the year 2020? What do you like and dislike in your community? What services need to be provided? What will our growing population of seniors require? What about our young people?

We're looking for essays written by residents of all ages in Markham. E-mail submissions to jmason@econsun.com or mail or drop them off at 9 Heritage Rd., Markham, L3P 1M3.

For more information, the editorial department at (905) 294-2200.
