

Creator says program 'dream come true'

into trouble. It's that millisecond before your shot that you are not totally empty that gives you trouble.

"You want to go from a consciously competent state of mind to the point of execution to unconsciously (automatic) competent.

"Once you have thoughts, that's when you get into trouble."

In short, don't think. Just hit the dang ball.

The RCGA's participation is encouraging for Mr. Archer.

"The next logical step is to follow it up with the players and see if it is a tool worth pursuing," said Henry Brunton, who oversees the RCGA national coaches for youths and adults.

"The reason we're working together is to see if there is a fit with the information they have and an application to what we have.

"Our role as coaches and in player development is to have all the resources we can. It's kind of premature and still in the dating stage.

"We like to walk before we run, so we'll wait and see how the younger players like it before we pass it on to our tour players."

The corporate sector has long viewed golf as an important business tool, but when the RCGA was sold on the idea and last month agreed to test the program, Mr. Archer was elated.

"To know it could actually go around the world to help golfers would really be something," Mr. Archer said.

"It was a dream come true.

If I died today, they'd never get the smile off my face."

"It has taken a few years of hard work, hardship and a strong belief this product would work.

"It was a dream come true. If I died today, they'd never get the smile off my face."

Programs are available to individuals and for corporate groups.

When your firefighters ask for a donation, remember they are the champions for many Canadians affected by a neuromuscular disorder.

And please give generously.
