eyes, and we showed the structure in her face more."

Hairstylist/Makeup Artist Fourogh, who did the second shade of highlight and makeup, said Megan is fairly fair-skinned and "had no makeup when she came in."

Fourogh said she used three different shades of makeup. To warm her up, she put earth colours on her eyes, a dark charcoal liner on her eyes to bring out her own natural colour, and a white liner on top of the charcoal second liner.

"Black stands out more," said Fourogh.

She also used a really soft blush with a touch of orange to bring Megan's cheeks out. "She has beautiful eyes and cheek lines, so I used a tan blush around the cheekbones. Underneath I put a lighter shade to bring out the cheek bones."

For lipstick, Fourogh used frosty with liner. The foundation was a tan colour.

Fourogh said when Megan was done, "she looked absolutely gorgeous."

Megan said later, "they asked when I liked in make-up and lipstick and together they are talkative and friendly."

"It was really a lot of fun...they even asked me if I wanted coffee, juice or water!"

"I like it. It's different. The way they cut it, it shapes itself. There's not a lot of work involved - a little gel and blow dry it and away you go," exclaimed Megan.

"Definitely, I'll go back. I'll see what it looks like in four months!"

(Remember the beginning with her husband's comments!!)
