

Burlton is making progress

From page 35.

Burlton, so far, has exceeded all expectations.

"Every time I'm blown out of the water, I want it even more," she says.

At the winter Nationals in Vancouver, she placed third.

"I was really happy about that," Burlton admits.

In Switzerland, she competed as a junior in the senior division, a tremendous learning experience, she notes.

"I had no coach and paid my own way," she remembers, "Canada never has sufficient support money for this kind of thing."

Although Burlton earned the right to compete in the world pentathlon championships in Australia she chose instead the Pan Am qualifiers in Brazil, again as a junior.

To assist with expenses, her equestrian students at Pause Awhile, including 20 pentathlon members, recently staged a barbecue and bake sale fundraiser.

"They're amazing kids," Burlton says.

Amazing too, she notes, are the owners/operators of Pause Awhile who understand her need to spend so much time off site, sometimes for long periods.

Burlton claims she has her parents to thank first introducing her to the pentathlon and supporting her every step of the way.

Her ultimate goal is to participate in the 2012 Olympics, hopefully in Toronto, with mother and dad seated in the stands.

With Burlton's resolve, it will happen.
