Markham doctor honoured for work in Ecuador

Markham Doctor Paul Roberts has been given the unusual honour of being named a citizen of Ecuador, in recognition of his work sending relief supplies to that nation.

Dr. Roberts, who was given the citizenship last month by Ecuador's Canadian ambassador, chairs the Friends of Ecuador Committee.

Since Ecuador's 1997 El Nino weather disaster the committee has collected and sent large amounts medical supplies and equipment.

Dr. Roberts' history with the South American nation goes back more than 50 years, to when he established a medical clinic near the capital of Quito.

Later he helped raise funds for new hospital and brought Canadian medical experts south to share their knowledge with post-graduate students.

In 1995 Dr. Roberts was awarded the Order of Merit, which is the highest civilian award a non-Ecuadorian citizen can earn.
