Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics expands into Electro-Dermal Screening

Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics is helping people to look great and to feel even better about themselves. Whether it's the permanent removal of unwanted hair, or a new skin care regime, more and more women are turning to the expertise and professional services of Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics. And, now they are expanding with Computerized Electro-Dermal Screening!

Owner and operator, Angela Martino, is a certified electrologist and esthetician, who for ten years, has provided her clientele with stunning results. In addition to specializing in the most advanced electrolysis techniques, Angela offers a wide range of esthetic services including waxing, facials, manicures and pedicures.

Pamper yourself with a spa manicure, complete with hand massage and exfoliating treatment. Or, relax and enjoy a facial massage and de-pore cleansing. Angela can also custom design the best skin care program that clients can then implement at home.

Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics now offers Computerized Electro-Dermal Screening (CEDS), which is the process of gathering information from the client or patient by accessing the body's "information windows."

This is done by introducing a small electrical current to predetermined points on the body and then collecting the data for evaluation. A trained practitioner is able to detect energy patterns produced by this screening and can incorporate his/her findings into a patient's overall healthcare plan.

CEDS is a data acquisition process used to determine the areas of electrical imbalance in the body and allows the technician to conduct an interview with the body's organs, showing much about the functional status of those areas.

Basically, CEDS is a method of taking measurements from certain acupuncture points on the body, using hands and feet and using the results to gain information on various items, such as allergies, vitamin, minerals, hormones, etc., but can also be used to assess the various body organs, glands and energy meridians.

This testing can help with virtually any health problem, as it identifies weaknesses and helps rationalize treatment which will enable patients to regain this health.

CEDS can indicate chemicals like pesticides and other toxic material in your system, including any problem with dental material such as mercury. It can determine the energetic level of each and every organ in the body and how well it is functioning, and indicate allergies and indicate food that are best suited to your specific biochemical makeup.

Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics has won a loyal following from clients who appreciate Angela's caring attitude and ability to make everyone feel comfortable and at home. The clean and professional premises are set up with separate rooms for privacy and the latest state-of-the-art equipment.

Neece Electrolysis & Esthetics has two locations, including sharing premises with hair salon, Port of Beauty in Markham. Clients can take advantage of the complementary services provided by both businesses in one convenient location.
