What's new at the Old Country Inn

Since 1978, the Old Country Inn has been a fixture on Main Street in Unionville, offering fine Austrian cuisine in a relaxed, chalet-style setting. Customers who have frequented this charming restaurant will attest to the quality of the food and the great service that they have received over the years.

Recently, new owners purchased the Old Country Inn, and they are preparing to write the next chapter in the life of this authentic, Austrian-German restaurant. "The German community has been enjoying this lovely restaurant for years," says George Iliopoulos, owner of Old Country Inn who has owned other restaurants in Toronto since 1980. "Now we want to tell others about the fabulous dining experience that is waiting for them at the Old Country Inn."

Old Country Inn still offers a fine selection of traditional schnitzel and bratwurst dishes with homemade sauces. "Our house specialties include Jäger Schnitzel, pork strips with mushroom sauce, and a home-made apple strudel that has received great reviews from customers," says George Iliopoulos, owner of Old Country Inn who has owned other restaurants in Toronto since 1980. "All innovative creations are prepared with only the freshest ingredients available."

In addition to the traditional Austrian-German cuisine, Old Country Inn plans to introduce some new menu items in early January. A new lunch menu will feature light salads, sandwiches and appetizers with a distinctly Austrian flair. Black Angus steaks will be added to the menu as well.

For New Year's Eve, the Old Country Inn is hosting a celebration for families. A special kids' menu includes lunch, juice or pop, a pony ride, face painting, party favours, a Shirley Temple toast and more. The cost per child is only $11.95. Three lunch sittings will take place (1:00pm, 2:00pm and 3:00pm). Please call to reserve a spot.

"Whether you're celebrating a birthday, office party, retirement function or a get-together with friends, we're accessible for any occasion," George says. "Our trained staff is committed to making your dining experience as pleasurable as possible."

The Old Country Inn is located in a century-old farmhouse in the heart of historic Unionville. Originally built in 1873, the restaurant has undergone two major facelifts over the years, including a Winter Garden with skylights, and an outdoor patio with louvered French doors. The restaurant is fully licensed and is open seven days a week.

The Old Country Inn is located at 198 Main Street in Unionville.
They can be reached at (905) 477-2715.
