

Fundraising to get aggressive for new Parkview community, second only to the Markham-Stouffville Hospital building project," said Ms Reesor-McDowell.

A low-key but successful fundraising campaign, involving staff and families of residents of Parkview Home for the Aged, has been under way for the past few months, Ms Reesor-McDowell said.

A more aggressive campaign designed to reach the entire community, including business, is about to start and at least one prominent business is on board.

"I've chosen to become involved with the new Parkview Home for the Aged and I encourage other businesses to think strongly toward this project," said Stouffville Canadian Tire

Store owner Ian MacKenzie, who attended the news conference.

Wally Kribs, administrator of Parkview Home for the Aged, said a lack of private bathrooms, narrow doorways and crowded care areas contribute to the many reasons Parkview needs an upgrade.

"Further advancements have been made in the area of understanding what works best for residents with some form of cognitive impairments due to stroke or Alzheimer's disease," Mr. Kribs said.

"Over 60 per cent of current Parkview residents have some form of cognitive impairment and our current building is not as supportive as it could be to our care staff in meeting the needs of these residents."

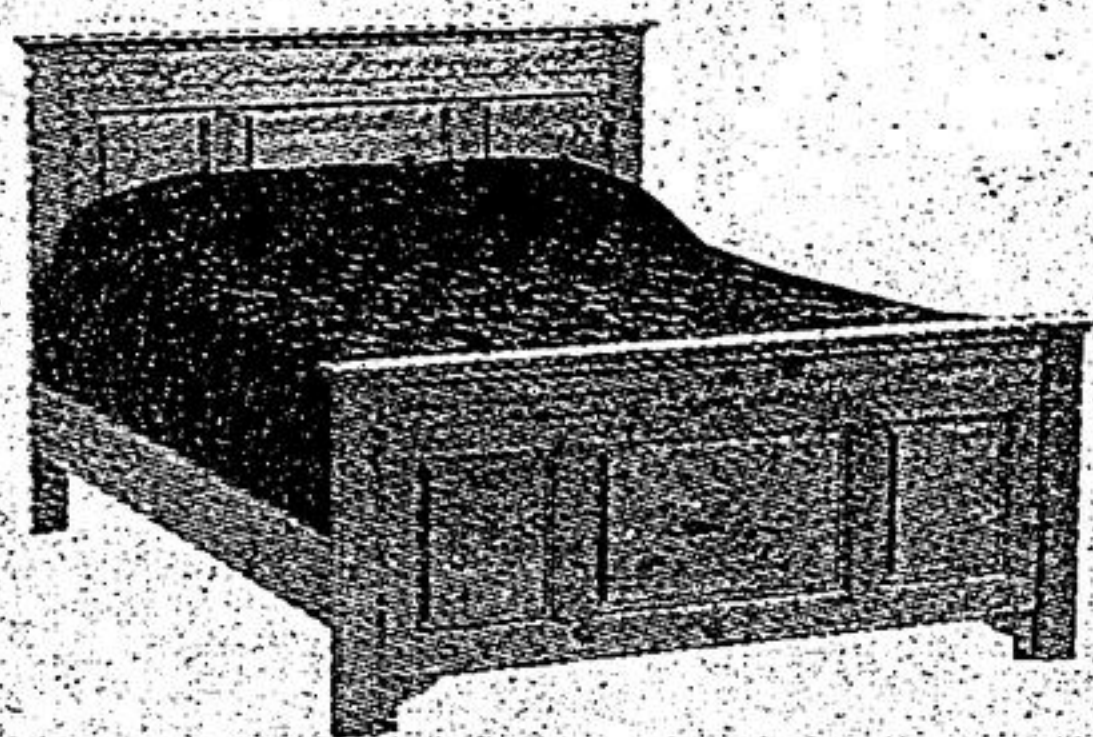

Since ours is an aging society, "dementia touches and will touch" many local families, Ms Reesor-McDowell said.

"The need to have an improved and expanded facility in place to offer "safe and compassionate care" is critical, she stressed.

Recognizing families must have help caring for loved ones with dementia, the Parkview Services for Seniors initiated the project.

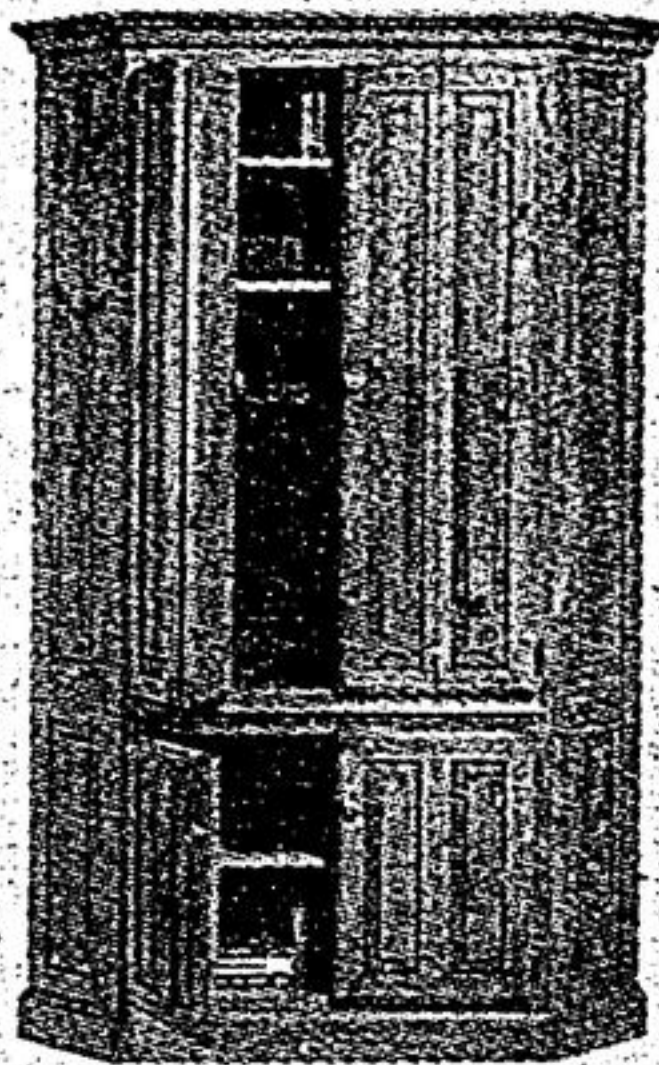

In keeping with the standards, the new Parkview Home will offer small home-like settings for its residents.

Parkview, in company with the Alzheimer Society of York Region and Whitby Mental Health, has been a community leader for a number of years in the provision of safe and compassionate care for residents diagnosed with dementia.
