Markham teen named one of province's top junior citizens

Markham's Shirley Manh received Ontario's Junior Citizen of the Year award in a ceremony last night in Toronto.

Up to 12 young people across the province are chosen every year in the 20-year-old program, which is co-ordinated by the Ontario Community Newspaper Association with the support of its 260 member newspapers, the Tembec Paper Group and the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

The award recognizes youths involved in community service, people who contribute to the community while living with a physical or psychological limitation and individuals who have performed acts of heroism or bravery.

The award also recognizes kids who make life better for others and do more than is expected of someone their age.

An honour roll OAC student at Markham District High School, Ms Manh, 18, has a long list of extra-curricular activities, volunteer positions and fundraising for local charities including the Markham Stouffville Hospital.

"She is an outstanding young person who has already given a great deal to her community and will no doubt continue to do so," said teacher John Pownall in his supporting nomination form.

Not Your Average Lighting Store

Recently, I checked out Sescolite Lighting's newest lighting showroom and was not prepared for what I discovered. This is certainly not your run-of-the-mill lighting store. Sescolite's new Richmond Hill location is 18,000 square feet, dedicated exclusively to lighting, the largest in York Region.

Many lighting stores are small, with the product all crammed in. Not this one. It's very easy to move throughout and look at any fixture from different sides. Sescolite is well known for its unique, quality European imports featuring lighting designs that you will not find anywhere else. This wide range of traditional and contemporary lighting is second to none and at a range of prices that will suit every budget.

Sescolite sells lighting for indoors and out for home, business and vacation properties. Looking for track, recessed or the latest in rail lighting? Check out their "Lighting Lab". Need outdoor or garden lighting? There are separate outdoor and garden lighting sections.

Sescolite traces its roots to 1920. Their Lighting Consultants are well trained professionals. They provide lighting solutions that will meet your needs, regardless of budget or design requirements. Sescolite sells to both the retail consumer and to trade. With over 82 years of experience, check out Sescolite Lighting at 150 West Beaver Creek Rd., Richmond Hill, 905.881.2808, or at www.sescolite.com
