

Power outage: bulldozer hits hydro tower

What next?
Last summer, a patio umbrella took flight and got stuck on the wires at a Hydro One transformer, causing a serious power failure in most of Whitchurch-Stouffville. Tuesday, just before 10 p.m., the lights went out in 4,800 homes in Whitchurch-Stouffville after a stolen bulldozer was driven into a hydro tower in the Bayview Avenue and St. John Sideroad area of Aurora. Power was restored at midnight.

*'It's a huge bulldozer.
It was driven right
into the tower.'*

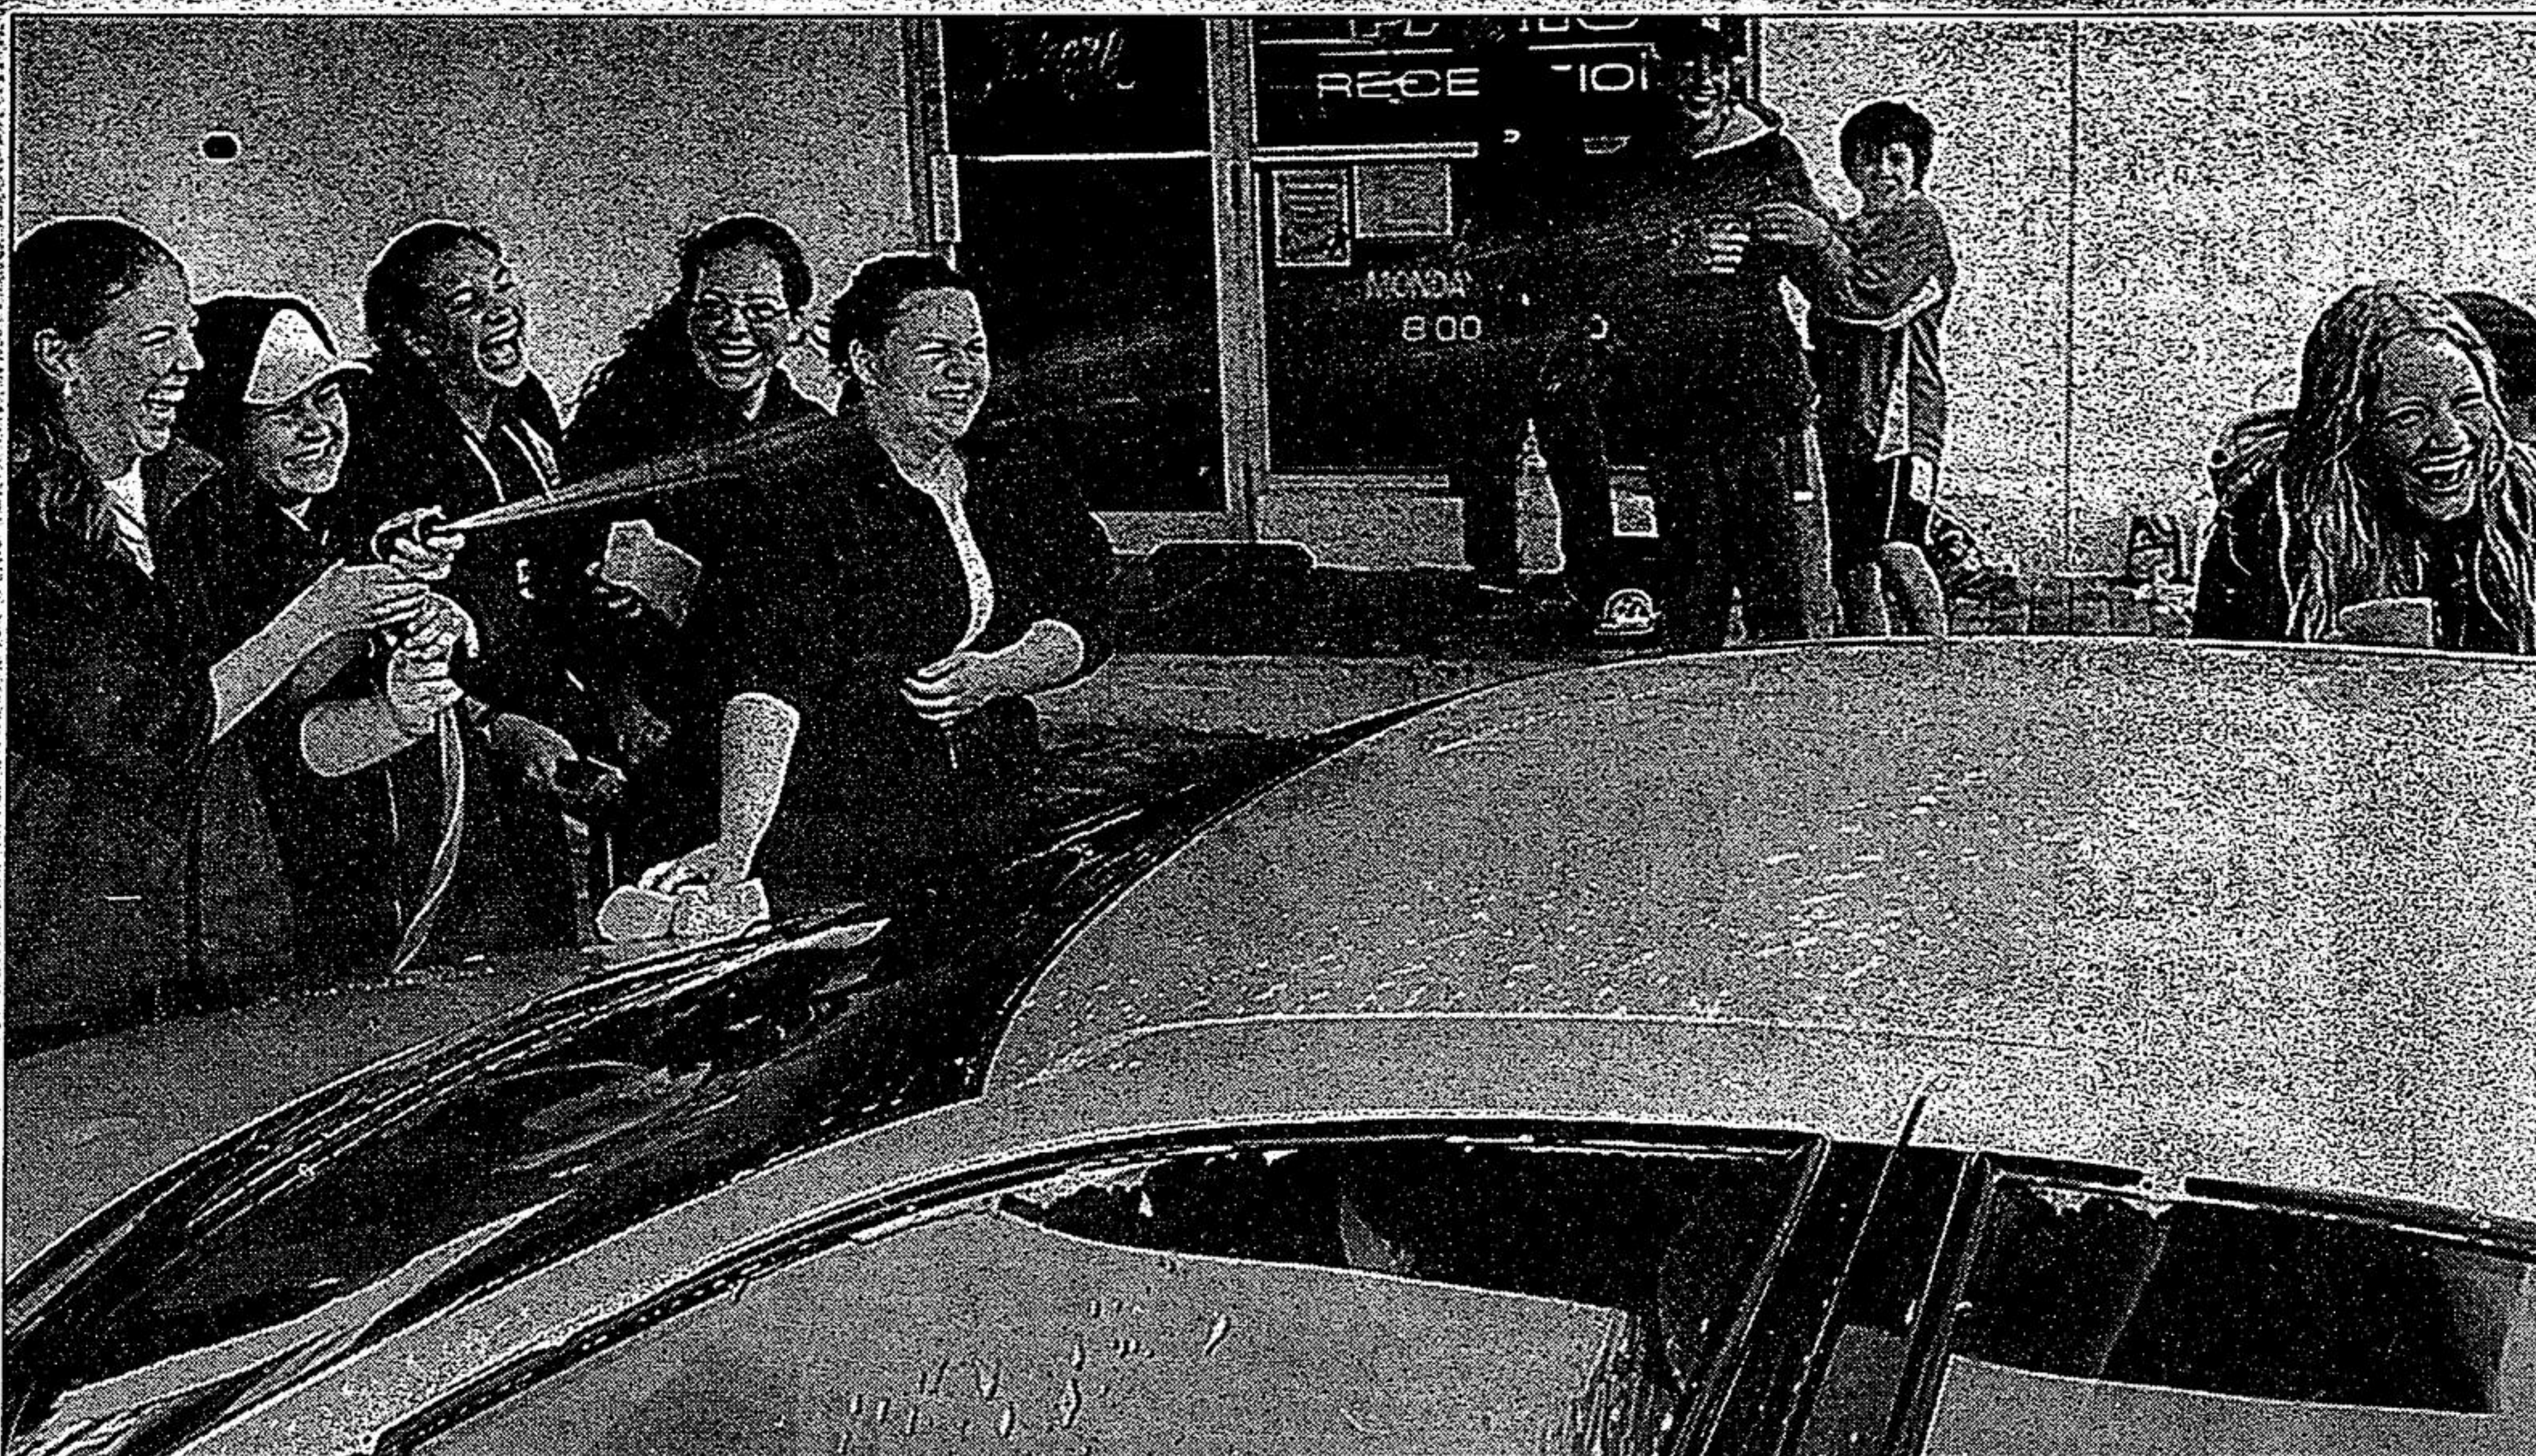

York Regional Police have two men in custody. "It's a huge bulldozer," said Const. Steve Morrell. "It was driven right into the tower." Both men are charged with mischief.

Carrie-Lynn Ognibene, a Hydro One communication advisor, said when the bulldozer hit the tower, it cut the service line that feeds to Whitchurch-Stouffville.

Cleaning up for graduation day

Sprayers (from left) Ashley Smith, Erin Pappas, Lindsay Wideman, Sadie Coughlin and Rebecca Pappas, all students at Glad Park Public School, turn their hose on classmate Jennifer Kammonen instead of the car during a car wash fundraiser at Houston Ford on Main Street in Stouffville. The event raised funds for their graduation party on Saturday.
