West Nile 'here to stay': region

behind in discovering crows and mosquitoes testing positive for the virus.

The positive mosquito colony was found June 18 near Musselman's Lake and Ballantrae in the area of Aurora Road and Ninth Line. The insects were discovered in a trap set by regional staff, who are working to exterminate mosquito colonies responsible for spreading the disease to humans. Mosquitoes feed on infected crows and pass the virus on to people.

"I think it establishes West Nile virus is established and it is here to stay," said Dr. Kassam. Last year, 14 mosquito colonies with the virus were discovered in the region.

Dr. Kassam believes even more will be found this year, although he said it's hard to predict how many human cases there will be. There were six human cases in the region last year and they all recovered.

Meanwhile, as residents head into summer and the Canada Day weekend, Dr. Kassam urged everyone to take precautions against contracting the virus.

For example, remove standing water to eliminate mosquito breeding grounds, use insect repellent with DEET as directed, wear protective clothing such as long-sleeved shirts, pants and socks, at dawn and dusk, and ensure screens in doors and windows are in good repair.

Dr. Kassam also encouraged residents to seek medical treatment if they fear they have been bitten by a mosquito infected with the virus, adding the medical community is now on heightened alert for signs of the disease.
