

Therapy of the Grill

Your Guide to SUMMER LIVING

Always remember to wash hands, and utensils side portions as they thaw. This keeps the outside from cooking before the inside thaws. Once defrosted, make sure you cook the food immediately.

6. Wash hands, utensils, and working surfaces thoroughly with hot water and detergent, then sanitize (e.g. with 1 tsp bleach in 3 cups water) after handling or preparing raw meats.

7. Remember to keep raw and cooked foods separate throughout the meal preparation process: storage, preparation and cooking. Always wash plates and utensils used for raw meat or poultry before using them for cooked meat or other foods. Prevent cross contamination by using separate cutting boards for meats and poultry, fruit and vegetables and breads.

8. If you're using a marinade as a sauce to serve with meat after cooking, reserve that amount before marinating. Never re-use marinade that was used for meat.

9. Heat up the grill first. Heating the cooking surface kills bacteria that live in the barbecue between uses.

10. Cook meats thoroughly until juices run clear when pierced with a fork. You can also use a meat thermometer to get the doneness just right.

11. Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Seems simple enough, but remember that in the summer the temperature outside is much warmer than at other times of the year, providing a haven for multiplying bacteria.

Wine Markers

Bestow upon your glass a mark of distinction. A charming way to identify your glass in a crowd.
