

Sky-high sandwiches fresh, tasty

ley soup ($3.25), my dining companion and I decided we would rely on our server to guide us to the house specialties, which, oddly enough, are prime rib ($14.95) and souvlaki, available in pork ($10.95), chicken ($11.95) or in a bun ($5.25).

We decided to try the pork souvlaki and the prime rib.

Both meals were exceptionally large and served with a choice of several side dish options, including roasted potatoes, Greek salad, rice, coleslaw, mashed potatoes and mixed veggies.

While the obviously frozen carrot, peas and corn medley and the gluey mashed potatoes on the side of the prime rib made me think of dinner at the local Legion hall, the actual prime rib portion was thick, juicy and delicious.

Opting for the roasted potatoes and coleslaw would be a better choice.

The souvlaki was tender and had a nice spice level, but it was the Greek salad that stole the show.

The salad, which is served with a generous portion of fresh, soft-feta cheese, onions, tomatoes, cucumber, green peppers, olives and a luscious homemade dressing, is available as a side to any entrée ($4.95) or as a meal ($8.50).

If you're hungry—and I don't recommend going to Cousins unless you are—the hot sandwiches are piled sky high, as are the deli sandwiches and both are fresh and tasty.
