

Mazda3 is a slam dunk

From first page

Instead of the almost airy lightness associated with Japanese cars, the Mazda3 has a solidity of feel and tautness one is always so impressed with in a German sedan. It does, however, retain the razor-sharp turn-in handling, which has always been a Mazda strong point.

Driving the 5-door Sport through the potholed streets of Toronto after the first media day at the Toronto car show, the way the suspension soaked up the bumps was remarkable. Instead of taking a hammering, the ride was rock steady.

Also the interior is worthy of note. With its amber backlit controls, and the firm but grippy seats, it was like being in a top-line German sports sedan. Couple this with the startling power of the 2.3-Mazda engine and the road-going feel of an Autobahn high-speed cruiser, one would expect to pay a lot of money.

In fact, the Mazda3 starts at just over $16,000 for the base car. The Sport, tested here, with the upgraded suspension, the big wheels and 2.3-litre engine is $20,185. Adding air conditioning and a power sunroof hiked the as-tested price to $23,185.

Forget being subjective, what one gets with the Mazda3 for the price already makes it attractive. Let your emotions in on the deal and the aggressive looks, great handling and solid Mazda reputation for toughness make it a slam-dunk.

It's not a surprise then, that the Mazda3 is the Car of the Year.
