Still in denial about West Nile?

- Toronto has reported its first human case of WNV
- Seven birds have tested positive for WNV in York Region
- York Region has actively engaged in WNV control and surveillance activities including larviciding catch basins and some stagnant water sites

Are you protecting yourself and your family?

- You can reduce the risk of exposure to the WNV by protecting yourself and your family:

Cover Up

- Wear light coloured, long-sleeved shirts, pants and socks when going out
- Minimize outdoor activity between dusk and dawn

Use Insect Repellent

- Apply repellent sparingly on exposed skin and on top of clothing; not under clothing
- Use only personal insect repellents that are federally regulated
- Follow all the label instructions including restrictions for use on young children and maximum applications per day

For more information on the use of personal insect repellents, contact the Government of Canada's Pest Management Regulatory Agency at 1-800-267-6315 or visit www.hc-sc.gc.ca/pmra-arla

Clean Up Around Your Home

- Clean up areas of stagnant water where mosquitoes like to breed, including containers of standing water, swimming and wading pools, eavestroughs and drains

What you do can make a difference in reducing the risk of catching the West Nile virus.

To find out more about what you can do to protect yourself and your family from WNV, visit www.region.york.on.ca or call York Region Health Services
