Library volunteers honoured

Our Town

with Hannelore Volpe

Two Whitchurch-Stouffville Public Library volunteers laid aside their books last week to receive their five year volunteer pins from the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship.

Cynthia Cembrowski and Robert Alexander were honoured at a ceremony at the Premiere Ballroom and Convention Centre in Richmond Hill.

The library has more than 75 adult and student volunteers who do a variety of jobs, including clerical work, genealogy, research, and helping with the annual book sale.

"It is a huge financial contribution to the library," library CEO Marilyn Ferguson said.

Anyone who is looking for the list of popular books or is trying to find a certain type of book or author have Cynthia Cembrowski to thank.

She does the research for these book lists, which make it easier for readers to explore new authors. She works on the creation and maintenance of the local history collection at the library and has done an inventory for the genealogy room.

Robert Alexander is known as the head of the library's on-site print shop, Ms Ferguson said. He prints up enough brochures and flyers for the library's many programs and services so that library patrons have the information at their fingertips.

He has also worked in the genealogy room and puts security strips on books.

He is involved with the InkBank program, which accepts used printer cartridges for recycling for payment. A list of cartridges the program accepts is at the library. The fundraiser is in its second year.

Hair gone at SDSS

Four teachers at Stouffville District Secondary School won't have to worry about the wind musing up their hair after Dec. 15.

They've volunteered to have their heads shaved to raise money for the Canadian Cancer Society.
