Cheadle brilliant in exceptional film

Hotel Rwanda
Starring Don Cheadle, Nick Nolte and Joaquin Phoenix
In theatres now

Canadian General Romeo Dallaire was the inspiration for Nick Nolte's character in this terrific film. Mr. Nolte told me it is loosely based on

Mr. Dallaire's experiences, as in his book Shake Hands with the Devil as head of the United Nations peacekeeping troops in the mid-1990s.

Mr. Dallaire called out to the world press and faxed UN Director Kofi Annan about the civil war in Rwanda and the ever-increasing atrocities, but always got the same reply, silence.

Mr. Dallaire concludes no one cared because it involved African blacks and they were just too far away.

People would see the news reports on this savagery and lawlessness and just keep eating their dinner. Meanwhile, nearly 1,000,000 Rwandans were murdered by their countrymen.

Hotel Rwanda tells the fact-based story of Paul Rusesabagina, the house manager of a cosmopolitan, four-star Belgian hotel in the capital city.

Don Cheadle has created a character different from anything he has done before, by changing his accent, vocal timbre, walk and mannerisms.

Mr. Rusesabagina was a refined, elegant and savvy man who curried favour among his wealthy white clientele and made them feel they were in an oasis. And that's what the hotel became: to thousands of Tutsis refugees, crammed inside, as blood flowed outside its walls.

He made endless deals with the devil to get his people rice and beans. And always fine scotch for soldiers and rebels he needed to bribe.

That was after whites, peacekeepers, and international armies had already abandoned them. It wasn't safe to be in the streets and the killing machine continued, Hutu versus Tutsis. This was just 10 years ago.

Anne Brodie

Mr. Nolte's Gen. Oliver stayed and did everything he could think of to bring some peace but it was impossible. Like Mr. Dallaire, he stayed until severe mental and emotional exhaustion brought him home to Canada.

Joaquin Phoenix plays a news cameraman working for a British network. He bravely goes into battle and shoots the story of the Rwandans, but leaves as soon as he has the chance, to the next story, to the next high.

This is an exceptional film which would never have been seen here without Mr. Nolte and Mr. Cheadle to bring 'em in. It's a reminder how isolationist we are and how wrong we have been.
