

Church goes on food drive

A large van load of food was collected during Bloomington Gospel Church's four-day food drive at the beginning of June.

Eleven members of the congregation visited more than 140 homes in the area to pick up donations for the Whitchurch-Stouffville Food Bank.

The idea was to raise the profile of the church in the small hamlet.

Almost every household in the community donated food or money to purchase food.

One couple, who had just applied for welfare to tide them over while the husband was recovering from a heart attack, apologized that they had no food to contribute, Pastor John Howarth said. The church later presented them with a $100 food voucher.
