

Pledges still coming in for Relay for Life fundraiser

The fifth annual Relay for Life fundraiser has made over $110,000 so far and pledges are still coming in for the Canadian Cancer Society.

More than 600 people on 56 teams, mainly from Whitchurch-Stouffville and Markham, were part of the 12-hour overnight event on the grounds of the Markham Museum earlier this month. They walked the track throughout the night. The track was illuminated by more than 1,000 candles in memory or in honour of loved ones.

Stouffville residents Tyler and Karen Murphy, both cancer survivors, read the names of people making an emotional victory lap around the track.

The Murphys have been part of the Relay for Life since it began five years ago, Katherine Craine, unit manager at the Canadian Cancer Society's Markham office, said.

The television sponsor for the Relay for Life in Markham was CTV with news anchor Bill

Hutchison as the master of ceremonies.

Whitchurch-Stouffville mayor Sue Sherban attended the event and Markham's deputy mayor Frank Scarpitti was event chairperson.

Last year's attendance was significantly lower with 39 teams of close to 400 people at the annual fundraiser. They raised close to $100,000.

Planning for Relay for Life 2006 begins shortly and the Canadian Cancer Society is looking for committee members to help with the organization of next year's event.
