

Website gives entrepreneurs facts on town

A website to give at-your-fingertips information for entrepreneurs looking to locate in Whitchurch-Stouffville got the go-ahead from town council last month.

The town-owned site will contain information on town fees, the local work force, residential developments, employment lands, the economic outlook and transportation, among others.

Economic development

Our Town with Hannelore Volpe

advisory committee representative Sal Bianco told council that because employment lands are limited in the municipality, new businesses should be encouraged to build higher-density units and cluster together.

Higher-density buildings would make better use of the limited quantity of employment lands in the municipality due to restrictions on land use on the Oak Ridges Moraine and the surrounding greenbelt.

The town has to work with existing businesses, Mr. Bianco said, to attract similar businesses and create clusters.

The focus needs to be on industries such as pharmaceuticals, medical technology, eco-tourism and professional services.

Education institutions such as universities could be beneficial to the town, Mr. Bianco stated. Clean or environmentally-friendly businesses will maintain the town's image of 'country lifestyle close to the city'.

The $12,500 cost for website development will come out of the 2006 town budget.
