Catholic board takes in Hurricane Katrina victims

The York Region Catholic District School Board has taken in three students from the southern United States free, thanks to the Ontario government.

Ontario schools opened their doors to children from states ravaged by hurricane Katrina this week, waiving the usual $7,000 to $10,000 in tuition usually charged to students from outside Canada.

The students have been accepted on humanitarian grounds.

So far, no students have been enrolled in the York Region District School Board.

The province will reimburse all Ontario school boards for the costs of admitting the displaced students.
