

SPACEMAN DROPS IN

STAFF PHOTO/BILL ROBERTS

Canadian Astronaut Kenneth Money poses at launch of space and heroes exhibit at Markham Museum Thursday. The exhibition, featuring space artifacts worn, handled and created by astronauts, will run through next spring. "The exhibit and educational program is one of the museum's new initiatives to raise awareness of Markham's contemporary role as one of the nation's leading high-technology communities," said museum manager George Phillips. Admission is by donation. Call 905-294-4576 for more information.

Run/walk gets new route

Representatives from Markham Stouffville Hospital Foundation and the Legacy 5K Run/Walk committee are to present a plaque today to members of the Legacy Community Ratepayers Association and founding sponsors in appreciation of eight years of hosting the annual event.

The run has raised more than $680,000 for Markham Stouffville Hospital since its inception in 1998.

The event will mark a new chapter by featuring a new route throughout the Cornell Community next April.

Santa Breakfast at Markville Raises $1,200

Markville Shopping Centre raised over $1,200 for CHATS and The Children's Aid Foundation of York Region at their annual Santa Pancake Breakfast on Saturday, Nov. 12. We would like to thank all the volunteers who participated from CHATS, The Children's Aid Foundation of York Region, Markville Shopping Centre, Enbridge Gas and M.P. John McCallum's office. A special "thank you" to our special guests M.P. John McCallum and Deputy Mayor Frank Scarpitti as well as our sponsors Enbridge Gas and The Markham Economist Sun. Hundreds enjoyed the event including (front photo): Santa, Sydney, Krista, son Jacob and husband Chris Ardagh in background. Thank you to the community of Markham for making this event a success and part of their holiday tradition. Best wishes for a wonderful holiday season from the team at Markville.
