Susan Sun, Traditional Chinese Medicine & Acupuncture Specialist

From her bright and welcoming clinic on Highway 7 Susan Sun offers a caring alternative for those wishing to try something different to treat their health problems. As a Specialist, Department Director and Researcher at Hebei University Medical Hospital in China she has a wealth of knowledge and experience in treating many chronic health problems. Her expertise was recognized by the Chinese government who awarded her two research projects: "TCM Treatment of Infertility caused by Pelvic Inflammation" and "The Effective Prevention and Treatment of Miscarriage by TCM". She has also had many essays published in TCM medical journals.

Susan draws on ancient Chinese healing techniques that have been studied and developed over the last 2,000 years and which research studies have proven to be effective. Indeed, some chronic health problems have been found to be treatable with Traditional Chinese Medicine where more modern, "traditional" medicine has not provided relief. She also uses her knowledge of anatomy gained during her internship at Hebei University TCM Hospital.

Traditional Chinese Medicine theory understands and believes that the body must be maintained in a balanced state both within itself and with nature. When the body is not in harmony TCM uses acupuncture, acupressure and special herbal remedies (no animal parts) to bring it back into balance. The treatment is non-invasive, uses sterile, disposable needles and is generally painless. TCM is effective in treating many chronic conditions such as depression, migraine, arthritis, insomnia and chronic fatigue, asthma and all those problems specific to women.

Over the past 20 years Susan has successfully treated many thousands of patients and, in particular, has helped women with their special problems and issues, including infertility, fibromyalgia, endometriosis, menstrual problems, menopause, etc.

Susan's clinic is situated at 5871 Highway 7 East in Markham.
