

Stouffville Says

By Hannelore Volpe

How would you feel about municipal politicians having their terms of office extended to four years from three?

— Asked at A & P in Stouffville

Anthony SMITTEN

Four years might be more appropriate taking the cost of holding elections into consideration.

Keith GARRINGTON

I don't think it's right. It is too long a time, especially with all the changes that are going on in town. With a shorter term, politicians are more likely to come to the public and ask about their concerns.

Dave BRECKLES

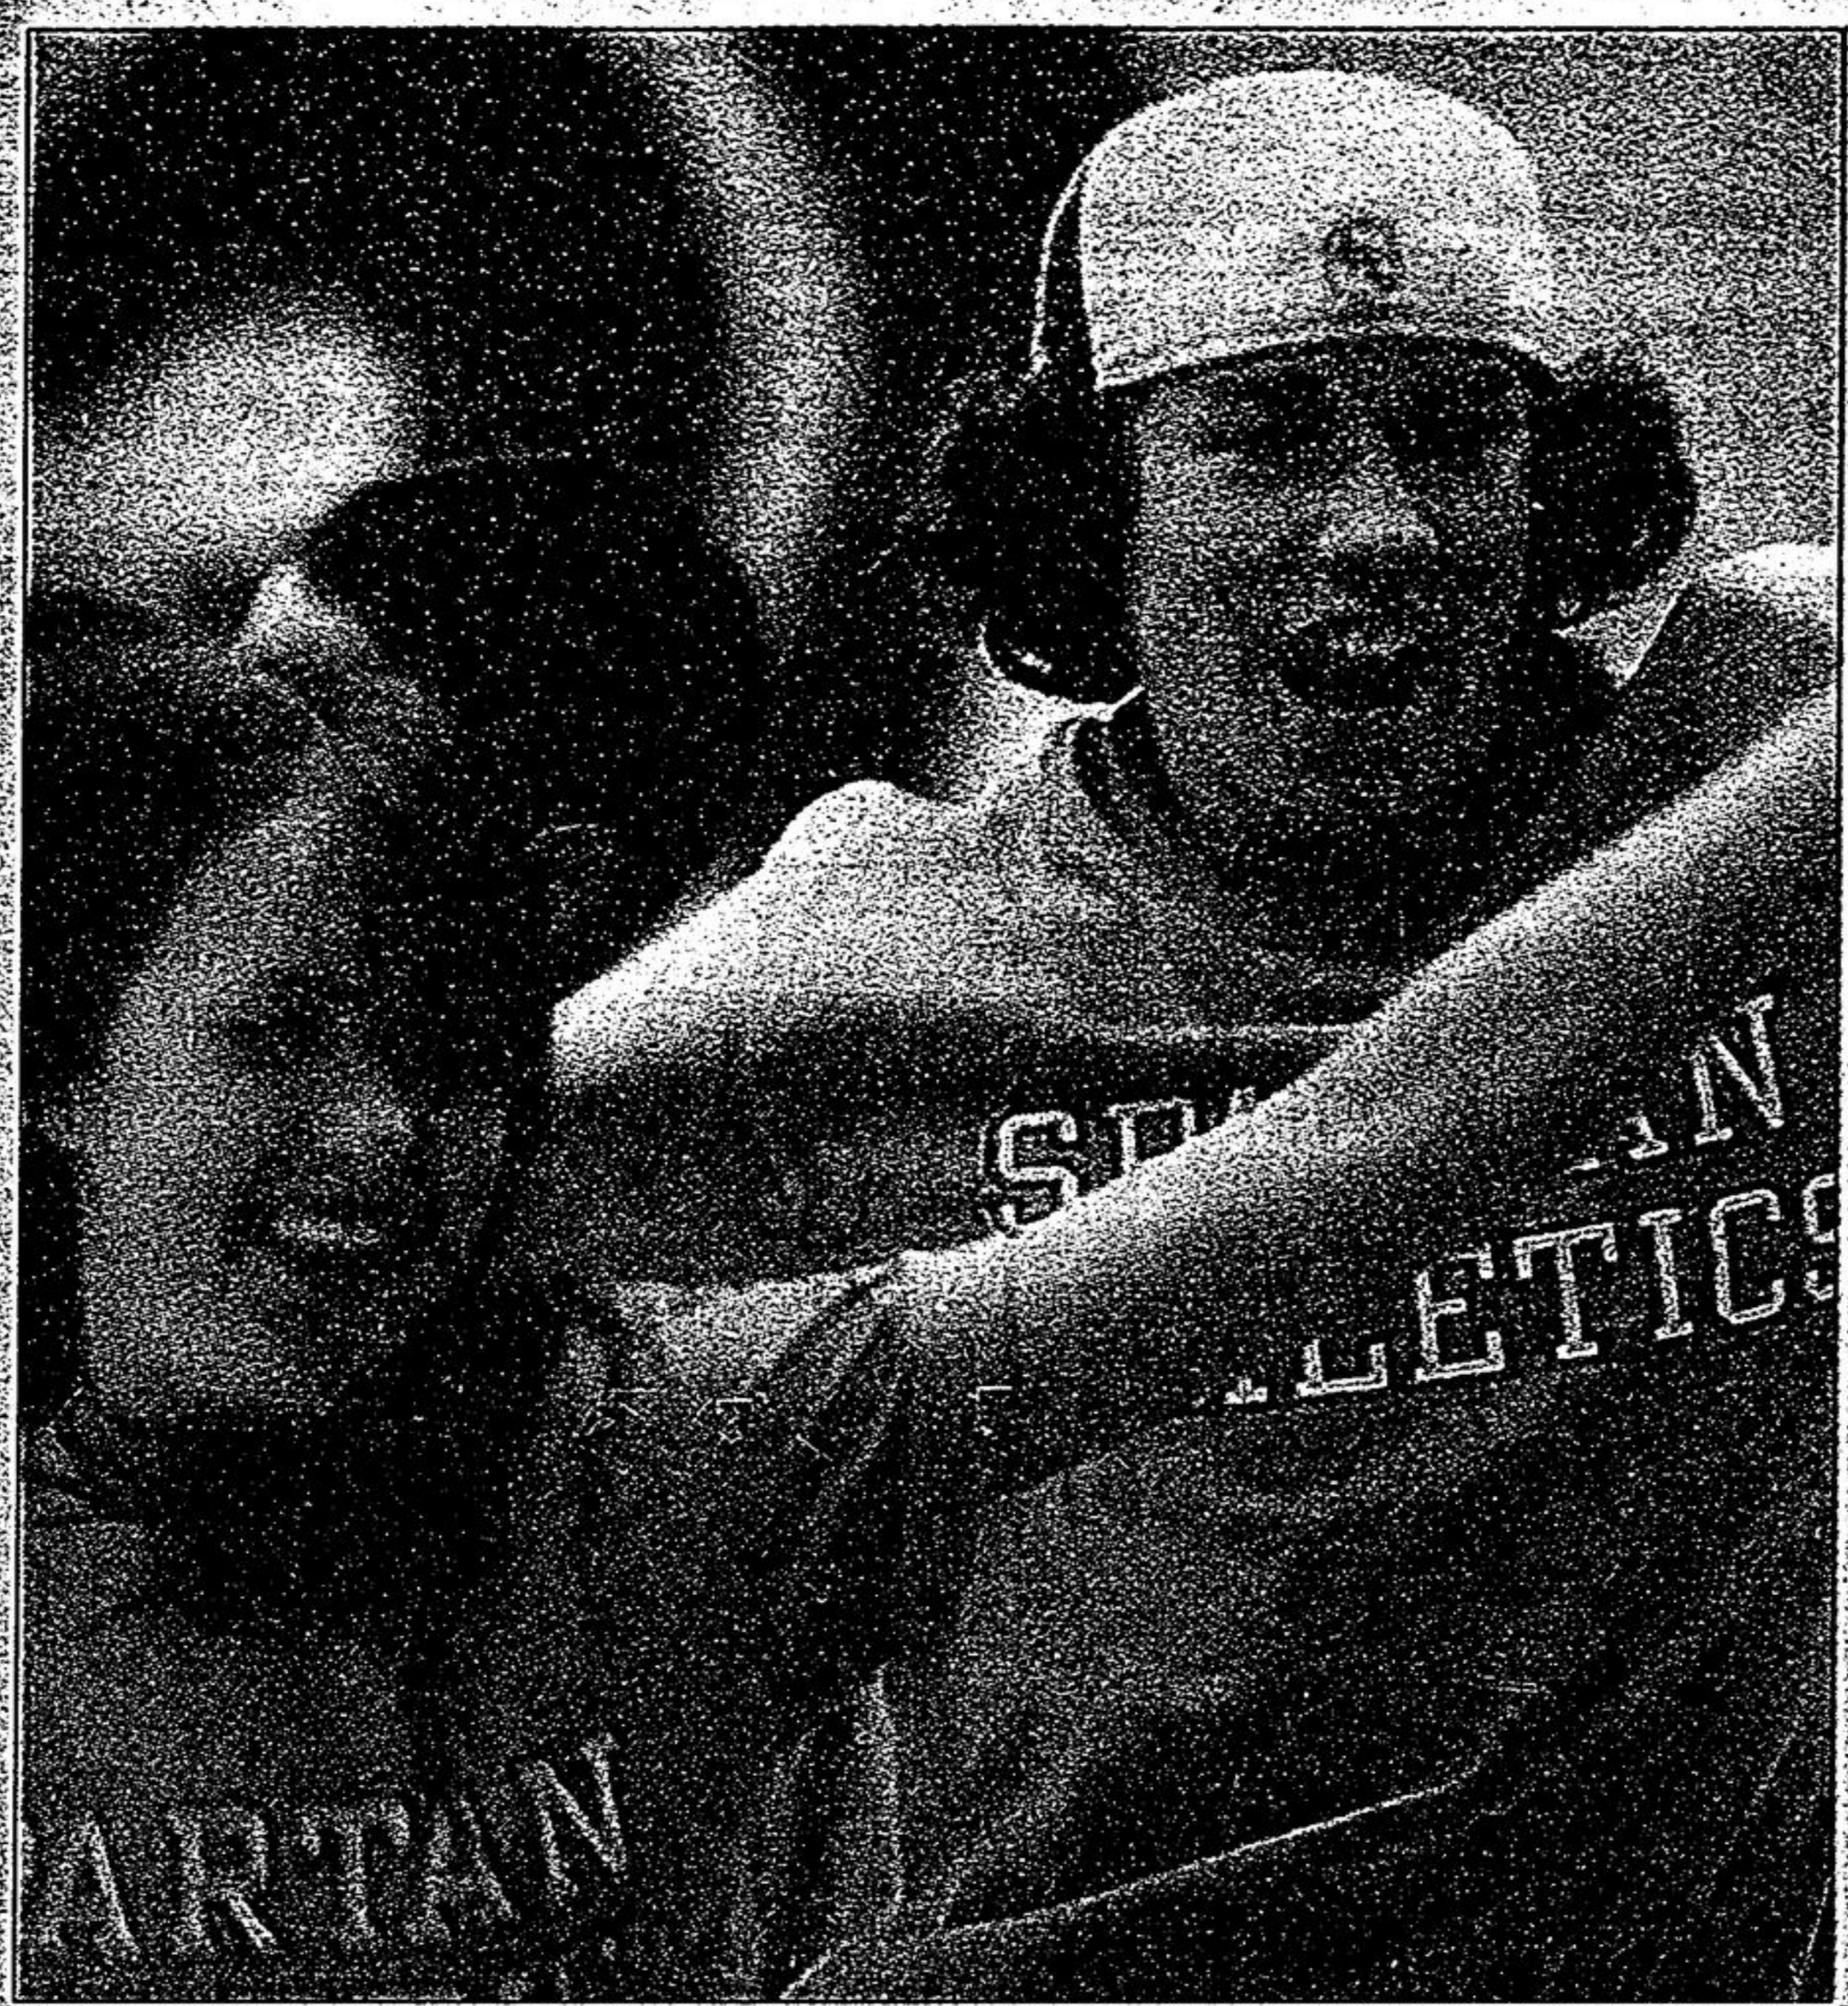

It gives them a longer term to be incompetent and steal from us.

Everett WARR

They should be able to get more done in four years. But then you have to wait longer to vote them out of office if they are incompetent.

Rural tradition dances on

Kaylin Nauta and Chris Pennanen strut their stuff for the judges during the square dance finals at Stouffville District Secondary School last week. The friendly competition has been a school tradition for more than 25 years.
