

DOING THE WAVE

Nicholas Fadden (from left), Jaime Shank and Brandon Swire, campers at Stouffville United Church's Veggie Tales vacation Bible school, wave the flags they made during craft time Friday. Fifty children attended the week-long camp, which featured crafts, games, songs and Bible stories.

tions, such as lightning, that could have caused the fire.

Empty beer bottles were found around the boarded-up home.

The house was built in 1852 by Christian Hoover. The Hoover family had owned the land since 1843 and farmed it until 1918. It was then sold to William Harper, whose son Bruce Harper continued to farm the property.

It stayed in the Harper family until 1978, when it was sold to Lebovic Enterprises. The house is recognized in a book called Rural Routes as a significant pre-confederation building in York County.

The Whitchurch-Stouffville Historical Society had hoped the house would be preserved because it is one of only seven fieldstone buildings in the area.

Former mayoral candidate Randy Mole suggested at Tuesday's town council meeting a forum for residents to share information on the fire be organized. Mayor Sue Sherban suggested he take the idea to his area councillor.

York Region's Police are appealing for help from the public. Anyone with information can call CrimeStoppers anonymously at 222-TIPS or 5 District at 905-881-1221.
