Think You've Heard It All?

ALL IN THE TIMING

While an explosive noise can result in immediate hearing loss, it is the chronic din of daily life that is responsible for deteriorated hearing over time. The conventional wisdom of assessing the risk of hearing loss is the intensity of the noise (measured in decibels), multiplied by the duration (the time of exposure). The danger begins at about 85 decibels, which is approximately the noise that a lawnmower makes. Hence, the louder the noise, the less time you should allow yourself to be exposed to it. Prolonged exposure to any noise that exceeds 85 decibels can cause gradual hearing loss. The so-called "five-decibel rule" says that, for each five-decibel increase, the permissible exposure time is cut in half. Hearing is essential to the full enjoyment of relationships and activities. Prolonged or loud noises from blow dryers, iPods, car horns, and lawn mowers can all contribute to hearing loss. Do you find yourself raising the volume on the television or asking people to repeat themselves? Please call to schedule an appointment. We are here for one simple reason: to help you improve the quality of your hearing and, thus, the quality of your life. We offer discreet and attractive aids that are so small people won't know you are wearing them.
