Johnson said.

Think You've Heard It All?

A NOTICEABLE SHIFT

When you experience ringing in your ears the day after a loud rock concert, you have a case of "temporary threshold shift." This phenomenon is the result of insult to the hair cells of the inner ear. These are the microscopic hair-like cells that are responsible for converting vibrations received from the eardrum into electrical signals that are carried by the auditory nerve to the brain. As the hair cells become damaged due to loud noise, their ability to function is compromised. As a result, there is fullness and ringing in the ears. Fortunately, the hair cells may recover to restore hearing; but more prolonged exposure to noise can lead to a permanent shift threshold and permanent hearing loss.

Prolonged exposure to loud noise may lead to permanent hearing loss. Our registered dispensing audiologists will give you one of the most comprehensive evaluations you'll ever have. We complete the audiometric test of frequency-specific sensitivity, speech reception test, word recognition test, and loudness test. Should you require a hearing aid or a protective device, we will select one that fits your unique lifestyle. For every new hearing system you purchase, we'll give you a 35-day evaluation period.
