

Realtor's sentencing delayed until June

BY JOE FANTAUZZI
Staff Writer

A Stouffville real estate broker accused of bilking millions from real estate investors has had her sentencing delayed until the summer.

Courtney Wallis Simpson, who previously pleaded guilty to defrauding the public, is alleged to have operated a Ponzi-type scheme that involved defrauding payments that were supposed to be invested into mortgages.

Losses to the investors have been estimated at $13 million.

The case is considered one of the biggest land scams in Ontario history.

Ms Wallis Simpson operated as the principal broker of York Region

Realty on Main Street in Stouffville. She was charged by York Regional Police in 2005. Ms Wallis Simpson will be sentenced in June.

Conservatives choose tonight

Conservatives in Oak Ridges-Markham will pick their new candidate for the next federal election tonight.

Stouffville's Paul Calandra, Andrew Keyes of Markham and Caroline Alleslev of Oak Ridges are seeking the nomination.

Registration runs from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Brother

Andre Catholic High School in Markham. Speeches begin at 7:45.

More than 400 people hold a party membership in the riding.

A federal election has not been called, although many are expecting Canadians to return to the polls this spring.
