

Wheels In Motion ambassador sees benefits of event

BY JIM MASON
Staff Writer

Wayne Feasby sees the benefits of Stouffville's Rick Hansen Wheels In Motion event like few others.

The lifelong resident is an ambassador for the event, along with former Stouffville resident Luke Anderson.

They require wheelchairs to navigate through their home town.

Both suffered spinal cord injuries in sporting events as young men: Mr. Anderson, a former Stouffville Sun carrier, was mountain-biking in British Columbia.

It's one of the reasons I like the event so much. It's doing important things that a lot of people may not notice.

Mr. Feasby, 52, was water skiing near Dorset, Ont., in 1979. The spill dislocated and fractured three vertebrae. A year earlier he had been playing hockey on scholarship and earning a degree from Yale University in the prestigious Ivy League.

Mr. Feasby's wife, Nancy Feasby, is on the organizing committee for the fourth annual Stouffville event. It starts at the Stouffville Arena June 10 with registration from noon and the start at 1 p.m.

One thing that sets this event apart from the others is that half of the money raised stays in the community to enhance accessibility for all," she said.

"It's one of the reasons I like the event so much," Mr. Feasby said. "It's doing important things that a lot of people may not notice."

Last year's event raised more than $13,000 and paid for a raised platform at the Stouffville Arena, accessible picnic tables in Memorial Park and an electric bed for a Stouffville resident in need.

Previous events paid for power doors and lifts at the arena and in Stouffville churches.

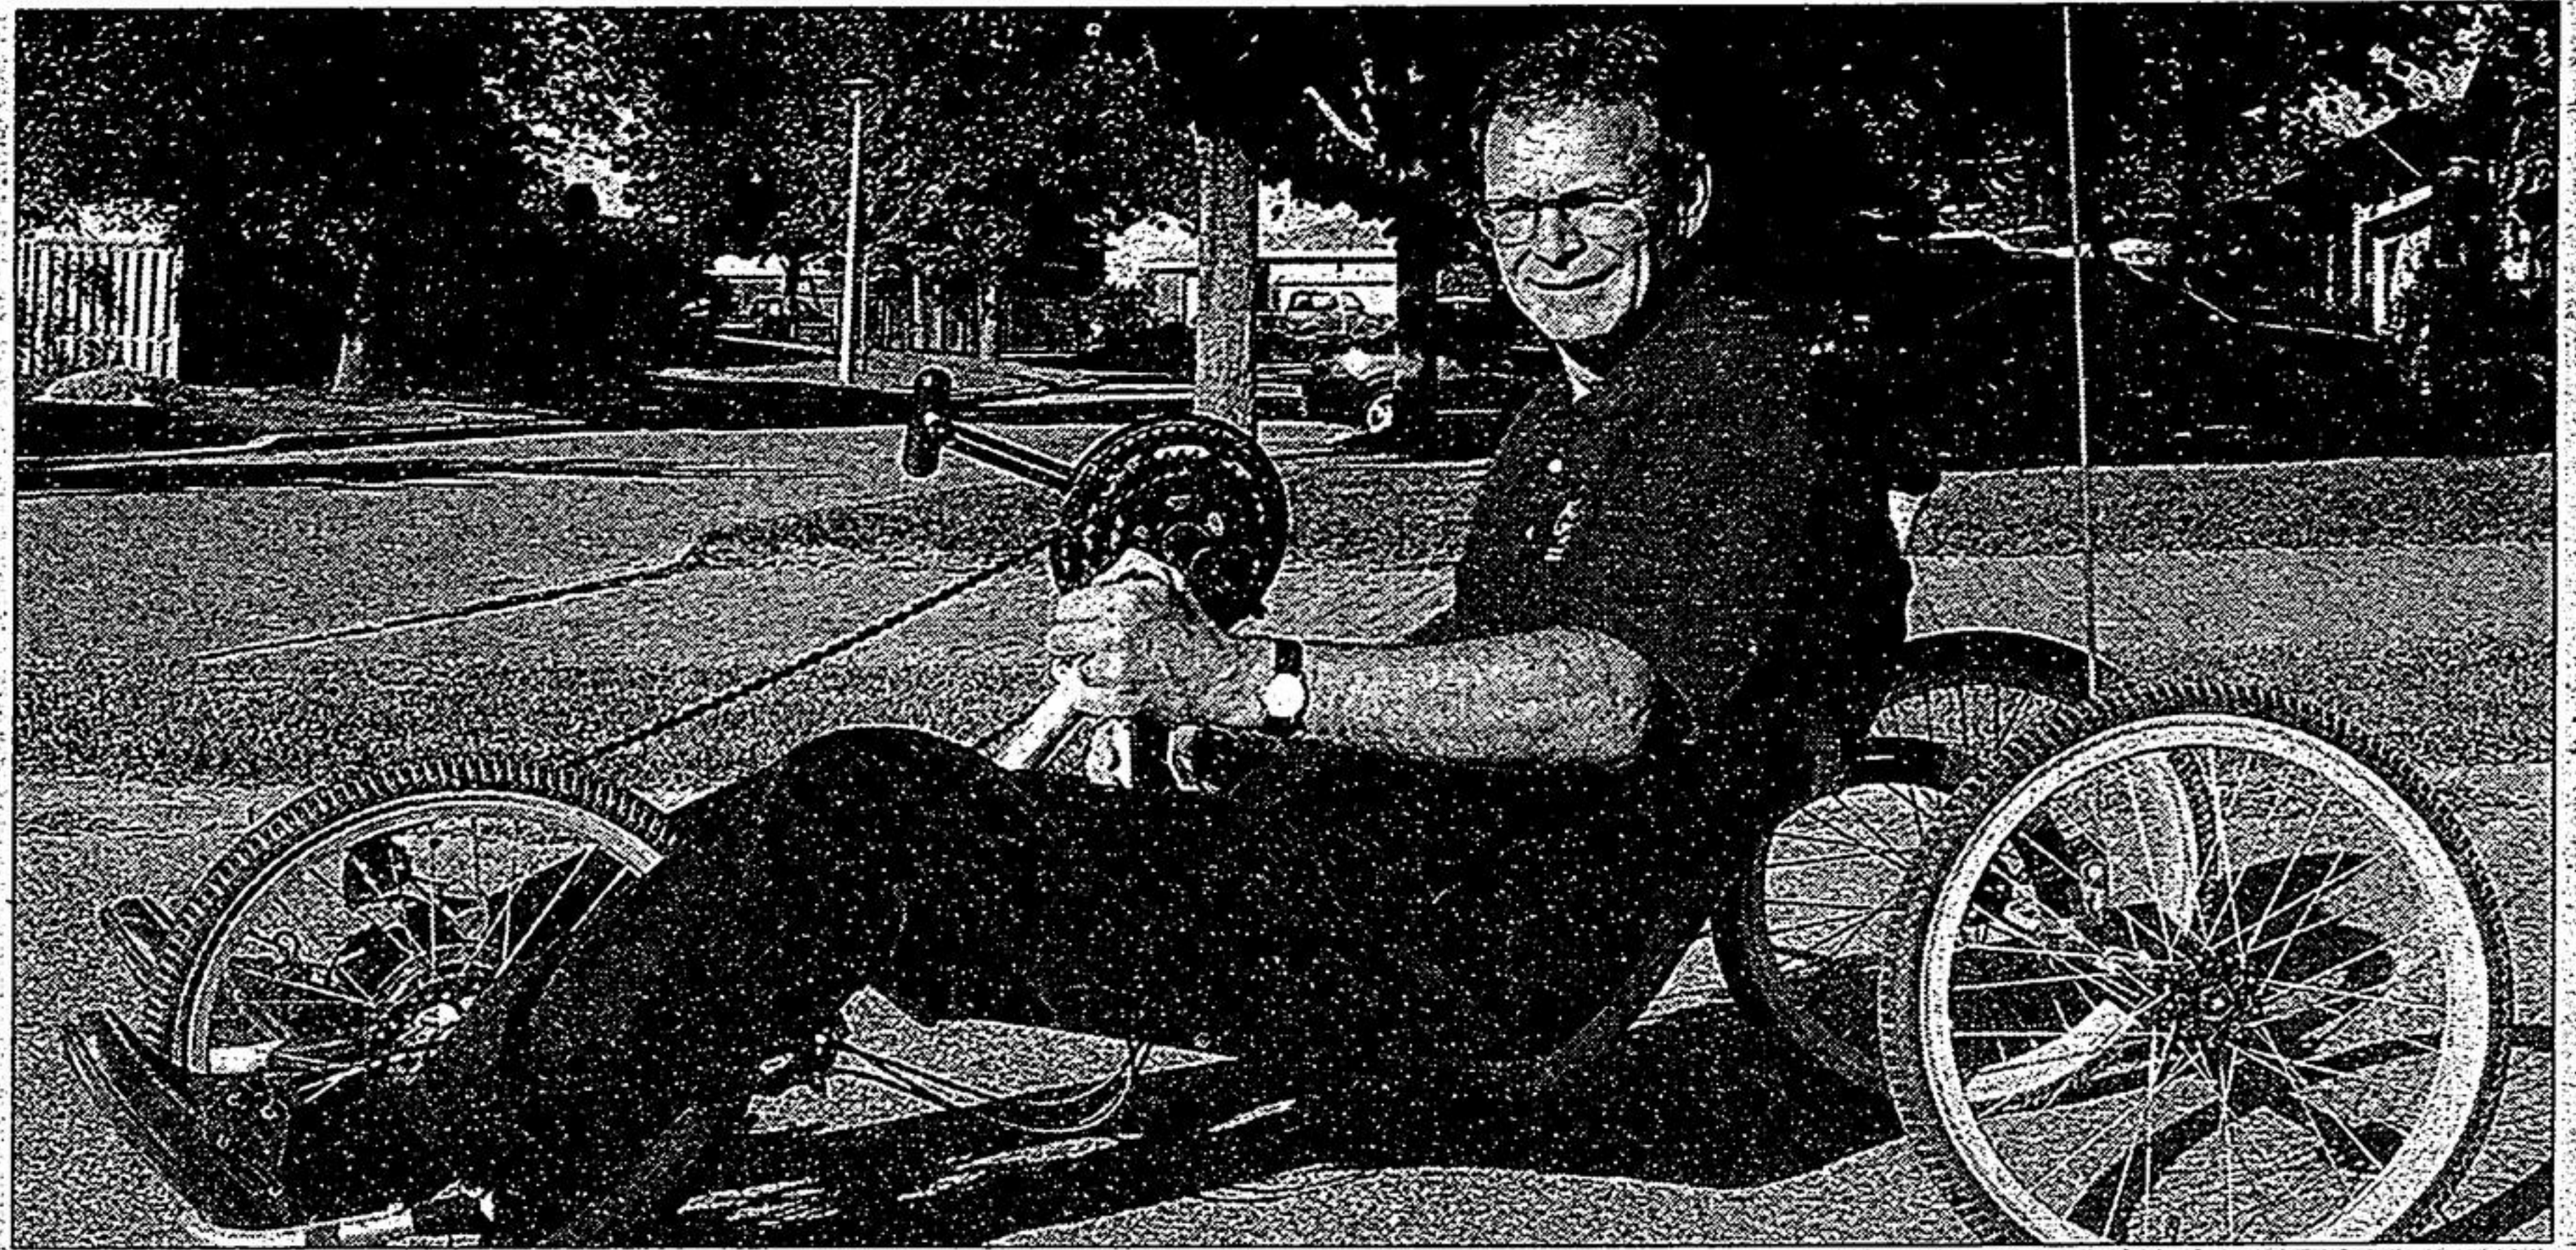

The other half of the funds raised goes to spinal cord research.

"This is obviously close to my heart," said Mr. Feasby, who is encouraged by advancements in research, particularly through the Rick Hansen Foundation. "There's a lot of competition out there with all the charity events."

He sees progress. If his injury took place in 1959, he would likely have been institutionalized instead of raising a family, working as a manager at Williamson GM in Uxbridge and volunteering in his home town. Now, the initial assessment of spine injuries is much improved.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of Mr. Hansen's Man in Motion World Tour.
