

Parkview marking first year

Parkview Home's long-term care facility in Stouffville is celebrating its first year anniversary in its new building at 123 Weldon Rd. by hosting an open house Sept. 12 between 2 and 4 p.m.

"The move last September from the original home on Rupert Avenue went very smoothly and the 128 residents who now live on Weldon have since enjoyed their new warm surroundings. The employees are very grateful and enjoying the new work environment," said Fran Lind, assistant administrator of resident care.

Generous donations from many community members have been received.

Board chairperson Joanna Reesor-McDowell, administrator Ginette Taylor and the Parkview Team welcome neighbours and friends to the event.

Opened mail found far from destinations

A handful of letters laying scattered on the grass near Ninth Line south of Musselman's Lake was found by Sun-Tribune reporter Hannelore Volpe last weekend.

Some of the letters had been opened. They were not in the vicinity of a community mailbox.

The mail was returned to the Stouffville Post Office on Main Street by Mrs. Volpe.

Canada Post spokesperson Sachin Deshpande did not speculate on possible causes of the mail ending up several kilometers away from its intended destination.

You should take such mail to the nearest post office.

Canada Post wants to investigate every incident brought to its attention, Mr. Deshpande said.

"It is rare. It is certainly not a regular occurrence," Mr. Deshpande said.

"We want to make sure we deliver mail accurately every single possible time."
