More chances to see fall colours on heritage train

The heritage train is doubling your chance to view fall colours from vintage railcars starting next month.

The York-Durham Heritage Railway has expanded its schedule "in response to increased demand" to include Saturday runs on top of existing Sunday rides.

Those rides go between Uxbridge and Stouffville. Saturday rides begin Sept. 8 and continue until Oct. 6, leaving Uxbridge station at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., and from the Stouffville GO station at noon. Sunday runs are set for the same times as Saturday.

The fall season ends with two Sunday runs on Oct. 14 and 21.

"Mother Nature determines the exact timing, but a ride on the heritage train in September and October will reveal the best colours the region has to offer," says a release from the organization.

"In preparation for the winter, wildlife is often bolder at this time of year where more than the usual number of sightings of beaver, deer, turkeys and foxes can be had from the train."

You will have access to an open-door baggage car equipped with safety barriers to allow enhanced viewing of the fall colours.

Round trip fares are $22 for adults, $20 for seniors 65 and older/students 13 to 17 and $14 for children two to 12.

Children younger than two travel free.

Group discounts are available along with group passes at $65 good for two adults and up to three children.
