

Help wanted: Dog to work with young readers

A friendly dog to help children read is being sought by the Whitchurch-Stouffville Public Library.

The therapy dog and its handler would volunteer one hour a week.

The idea is for young children struggling with reading to read to one of the friendly animals while getting a little reading help from the dog's handler.

Therapeutic Paws of Canada runs the Paws to Read program, which requires an additional interaction with children evaluation for existing therapy dogs.

The Paws to Read dog can be recognized by the bright vest he wears while volunteering.

To volunteer, contact the library at 905-642-7323.

For more information on the Paws to Read program, log on to tpoc.ca and check the contact us link for a local representative.

The library is in Stouffville Memorial Park.

Focaccia Bread . . . new at Reesors . . .
it's our latest addition to our breads. A great flat bread, sprinkled with seasonings that make your mouth water. Ask our staff for a sample today.

Kate's West Coast Brownies . . .
The recipe has come from the west coast . . . but the brownies are made right here. Just what you need to fill that chocolate craving you've had all day.
