HOW TO CHOOSE A DANCE SCHOOL

Chances are if you are reading this you are considering enrolling your child in dance lessons. But with all of the choices out there, how do you decide? Here are some important things to consider when choosing a dance education program for your child.

WHO is teaching my child's class and how qualified are they?

Ensure that the individuals who are teaching your child are qualified to do so.

Ask what the qualifications of the instructors are and what they are doing to stay up-to-date with the latest training techniques. Most dance teachers do not have post-secondary training in dance (university/college). Teachers who do have received in-depth training in dance as well as the latest techniques of teaching dance (pedagogy), developmental (child) psychology, anatomy and injury prevention.

WHAT are they teaching my child?

Age appropriate training is a must. Research shows that creative movement is the most beneficial form of dance training for children 7 and under. Many chronic injuries can be traced to poor movement habits learned in early years of bad training.

WHERE are they teaching my child?

Dancers need adequate space to move and a proper floor on which to train. The best "where" to train is in a space that is equipped with professionally sprung flooring to help absorb shock and prevent injury.

HOW big is my child's class?

Is the class small enough to allow for individual attention?

WHY should I enrol my child at a particular dance school?

Because they care enough to have qualified teachers, who provide age appropriate training in a spacious, professionally equipped studio, with limited class sizes.
