Stouffville Mark's 346th store in Canada

Mark's Work Warehouse has 346 stores today, thanks to the official opening of its Stouffville outlet.

The branch is at 1090 Hoover Park Dr. in a building it shares with Canadian Tire next to Wal-Mart.

The 8,000-square-foot outlet was built using modern fixtures, better lighting, signage and displays.

Grand opening events continue through Sunday.

Specializing in clothes for work, the store features private label merchandise.

It also has a large assortment of women's wear, and Mark's usual selection of casual/weekend wear including jeans, footwear, outerwear, and accessories that range from hats and scarves to bags, belts, socks and underwear.

"Our mandate is simple; to provide the best service in a comfortable, modern shopping environment and deliver quality products that offer good value and work well in our customers' wardrobes," district manager Don Heron said.

Part of the Canadian Tire family, Mark's was founded in 1977.

"Mom, I want to LEARN GAME PROGRAMMING"

Is your 9 to 17 year old child good at math without trying? Has s/he already expressed an interest in wanting to program video games, someday, as a job? Then consider RP4K's weekly game programming classes!

This fall, in Richmond Hill, Real Programming 4 Kids™ can teach your child game programming using real programming languages such as Visual Basic, Java and C++. The maximum class size is only 4 students per instructor. Classes are held on Saturdays or Thursday nights @ the Richmond Hill Chamber of Commerce.

Kids can use Visual Basic to program Pacman, Frogger or Tanks games. Teens can start by programming Donkey Kong in VB, Asteroids in Java or a Side-Scrolling game in C. Those teens with programming experience can start in more advanced projects such as programming a Mario or Worms game in VB. Other advanced courses include using Java, C or C++ to program RPG games, 3D worlds, or RTS games!
