Use Old County Home as Hospital

Possible use of the 50-year-old Ontario County Home as a hospital was proposed last week in County Council by Dr. Neil E. McEwen of Whitby, Deputy-Reeve of Pickering. It will be vacated late this year when the new 200-bed structure is completed. The old building, structurally sound, is well suited as a convalescent home or a maternity hospital, Dr. McEwen said. Members of council indicated that they agreed. The topic arose because the old building has been advertised for sale by tender, along with barns, outbuildings and four acres of land. Only one bid was received—$11,000 and this, council had no hesitation in agreeing, was ridiculously low.

"All hospitals for miles around are plugged to the doors," said Dr. McEwen. "It is a wonder that some local authorities would not be willing to take this idea in hand and arrange for purchase of this fine building, for use as a hospital, if not as a general hospital, then for limited use."

Time to End Wrangling Over What's Best Road Deal, Says Pickering Twp. Deputy-Reeve

"Some of the county roads are worse than township roads. Possibly the whole county road system should be turned back to the municipalities and the sooner we come to it, the sooner there will be an end to this wrangling about who pays for what and who is getting the best of the deal," stated Pickering Deputy-Reeve, Dr. N. E. McEwen, in County Council session last week.

At this Reeve Harding retorted that at least apple-barrels weren't being used for culverts in the county road system! (A recent inspection of Pickering roads, which Dr. McEwen is chairman, disclosed all sorts of weird apparatus being used for culverts, including a row of five apple barrels.)

Bill 93, an amendment to the Highway Improvement Act, is the "hot potato" of the current session of County Council. Passed only last March 27, the new legislation is designed to bring about a more equitable distribution of County Road funds between the rural and urban municipalities. How it will work out in practice in this county, remains to be seen. Among the provision of the bill, is that the county road system shall maintain a 22-foot strip on extensions and connecting links through urban municipalities and that not less than 25% (of their road payments to the county) are to be rebated to urban municipalities and applied to maintenance of streets in those municipalities. The county may contribute more than 25% to bring about equity. Agreements will have to be drawn between the county and the municipalities; falling agreement the dispute would be settled by the Minister of Highways.

"This new bill succeeds in confusing the whole set-up," commented Reeve Tom Harrison of Thorah.

"This road system is cock-eyed," added Reeve Duncan McIntyre of Whitby. "Here we have the picture of Oshawa with its large population supporting only a short section of suburban road to the tune of only $4,000 in 1950 yet Whitby in the same year—and Whitby hasn't any county road leading in—contributed over $12,000 to the county road system. At the 1951 rate Whitby would be paying $15,000 unless rebates are given. That's ridiculous. Whitby has no county roads. What basis we shall find to straighten out this thing is beyond me"
