Improve Rural Landscape in Ontario

On farm owned by naval veteran Alvin C. Beggs of Sunderland, 40 volunteer workers from the Veterans' Land Act department built a newtrench silo, which if proven successful following thorough, practical test on June 15, will become standard equipment for the 10,000 or so veterans under V.L.A. And if the whole idea catches on, the rural landscape ' of Ontario will see a big change, with gradual disappearance of the round towerlike silo that features many farms today into the ground. The "digging bee" was the result of a decision by officials to try out this new-type trench silo themselves following contraversy which had arisen as to pros and cons of a silo which . is built underground and not overhead.
