

Encyclopaedia Britannica is the most valuable asset you can give your children and yourself—the gift of knowledge. For its scope is equal to that of a library of 1,000 books. It brings you the knowledge and learning of world-recognized leaders in every field.

Britannica is designed to “televise” information to you with over 22,000 photos, maps and drawings. The Britannica library is the most complete reference work published in the world; over 28,000 pages containing over 37,000,000 words. It contains almost everything you might want to know about any subject.
