Smashed beer bottles

UNIONVILLE - A 19 year old Scarboro youth was fined $100 in Richmond Hill Court, March 30, following conviction on a charge of obstructing a police officer.

Police Constable Byron Langman testified he discovered 5 bottles of beer in a vehicle owned by James Crisp, after he stopped the car outside Unionville.

Constable Langman told the court he placed the liquor on the roof of the car and asked the occupants who owned it.

At that point, Crisp was alleged to have said, 'what beer' knocking the bottles to the pavement.

Although Crisp pleaded not guilty to the charge, he admitted smashing the beer bottles, under cross examination by the Crown.

In upholding the charges against the accused, Judge Russell Pearce told the court he was satisfied Crisp realized he was destroying evidence. Crisp also faces charges of littering, to be heard in Aurora, May 28.

A kind of comedy

'Hand over our van'

YORK REGION - It sounds like something out of a Gilbert and Sullivan comedy. But it isn't.

It all began last January when police vehicles were to be turned over to Richmond Hill without a license.

This included a 1971 Volkswagen van used by the Richmond Hill Police in their school safety program.

But Richmond Hill refuses to give it up. Works Commissioner Otto Whalen insists the vehicle was purchased by his Department and refuses to hand over the ownership papers.

So it sits behind the municipal buildings in Richmond Hill without a license.

"We have the van but the Works Department has the license", complained Police Chief Bruce Crawford at a meeting of Police Board, April 5.

The Board of Police Commissioners unanimously agreed to confront Richmond Hill Council and demand the ownership papers be released.

$60,000 grant

YORK REGION - A $60,000 grant from York Region will enable the Blue Hills Academy for emotionally disturbed children to double their residential capacity this year.

Although the request for a grant had originally been rejected on the advice of the Regional Solicitor, the motion was re-introduced by Richmond Hill Mayor Bill Lazenby and Councillor Gordon Rowe at a meeting of Regional Council. Blue Hills is a non profit organization operating a residential centre for the treatment of emotionally disturbed children. The Academy will receive the grants in equal installments of $30,000.
