Pickering scene

Preserved on film

PICKERING TWP. - Airport or no Airport, Sessue Tanaki is determined that something of Pickering Township's history will remain - at least on film.

Mr. Tanaki, 31, is a professional photographer with one of Toronto's larger agencies. In his spare time, he photographs unusual architecture.

"I've done some work around this area before", he said, "but I've decided I have to be systematic about it, if I want to get everything".

He explained his views while sitting in the grounds of the Township Museum, at Brougham, surrounded by cameras, lenses, light meters, tripods and large-scale maps of the district. He has marked off the entire northern part of the Township into grids, and will cover one grid per week photographing anything interesting which is in danger of being destroyed.

"I'm just starting on Brougham", he said. "Exteriors, interiors, houses, barns, shed - everything. I'm hoping eventually to make up a portfolio of the best shots".

He excused himself after affixing his camera to an enormous lens, and went off to capture more history.
