Provincial interference

'Disgrace to democracy'

STOUFFVILLE The uncertainty of obtaining provincial approval for development brought an angry outburst from Councillor Merlyn Baker, June 9. The Planning Committee had met with Charles Ratcliff, concerning a plan of subdivision in the Lemonville area. Mr. Ratcliff originally gained municipal approval for 20 lots, but the project was quashed by the Department of Municipal Affairs. A re-drafting of the plan, giving a total of 8 lots, recently obtained cautious approval by the Town, but Mr. Ratcliff said this would be uneconomical. He asked to be allowed to develop twelve.

The lengthy discussion which followed centered around approval from senior levels of government. Chairman, Tom Lonergan expressed doubts that the province would approve more than 8. He also reminded members that the Water Resources Commission has, in the past, insisted that water be piped in from Stouffville to serve the development.

After Mr. Ratcliff left, promising to have his plans re-drawn for a 12-lot development, Committee members continued to discuss the project. Mr. Baker was sharply critical of provincial interference in such cases. "I think we're in bad trouble if we can't even approve a small development of 12 lots," he said. "This is a disgrace to democracy".

Councillor June Button emphatically agreed, but Mayor Laushway was more reserved. "Those are the rules established by higher levels," he reminded Mr. Baker. "The rules aren't always right, Mr. Mayor," retorted Mr. Baker. He went on to criticize the suggestion of pumping water to that location from Stouffville, terming the idea "childish". While other members were not so forceful in their views, there was some sentiment in favor of the original 20-lot development.

Mr. Ratcliff is to submit his new site plan at a future Planning Committee meeting, hopefully with representatives of the Region's Area Services Branch in attendance.

The Wexford Raiders, the team that operated out of Stouffville is one of nine teams in the original plan.
