Uxbridge students stage classroom walk-out

USE TRIBUNE CLASSIFIED ADS

UXBRIDGE Students of Uxbridge Secondary School walked out of classes Nov. 9, in protest over the teachers' current work - to - rule campaign.

students left classes because teachers refused to stay after closing time to aid in extra - curricular activities or give students additional academic help.

students walked out to try and speed up negotiations between the board and teachers. We don't like student involvement because this injures student - teacher relationships.

The protest continued through Friday, with students pitching tents and dancing to a rock band in order to keep warm.

Out of 876, only 113 remained, said Mr. Bernhard.

Mike Farlow, student council vice - president, said the students staged the walk - out not only to hasten negotiations but to "stir - up" parents.

Principal Peter T. Bernhardt, said the

Alex Williamson, trustee for the Town of Uxbridge, Twp. of Scott and Uxbridge Township, said, "The

He went on to say that the students have had to organize their own football games but without much success. "Without official referees the games get out of hand", he said. The walk - out ended Monday when all students returned to classes.
