For this crowd, it's all about vocal synchronization.

Bach to Blues, a group of Stouffville-area singers, prides itself on mixed vocal harmonies and for group member Luanne Griffin, it's what she loves the most.

"I really enjoy the blending of the voices," she said. "I love singing harmony with other people."

The non-profit organization, started in 1998, has a busy schedule this weekend.

Bach to Blues is holding International Songs for Spring this Sunday in conjunction with Willowgrove and Willow Springs Winery.

The first show is at 2 p.m. at Willowgrove, on McCowan Road just south of Stouffville Road.

Tickets fare $10 per person, or $20 per family.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Rose of Sharon Services for Young Mothers.

After the first show, the group perform again at 7:30 p.m. at Willow Springs Winery at 5573 Bethesda Rd.

Tickets are $12 and only 80 are available. Light refreshments will be served.

A guest guitarist, Aldo Buzolini from Mexico, is also performing.

The 30-member group sings a wide variety of music ranging from the 16th to 20th century.

"We quite enjoy singing all the different kinds of music," Mrs. Griffin said.

"We sings songs from around the world."

In addition to holding their own fundraiser, group members also perform at concerts for entertainment, as well as other fundraisers.

"We would like to sing for anybody who wants us to sing," Mrs. Griffin said.

Bach to Blues is looking for more members of all abilities and experience.

"It's fun to learn all the different kinds of music," she said.

"You don't have to read music to belong to the group. It helps, but you don't have to. It's just fun to learn everything."
