African life changed SDSS award winner

Few Canadian students have the opportunity to live in another part of the world, particularly one that presents such a vastly differently life experience as Africa.

Stouffville's Jeremy Reesor, winner of a $4,000 Canada Millennium Scholarship Foundation excellence award, did.

The award recognizes university and college bound students for their achievements in leadership, innovation, academic performance and community service.

Lt.-Gov. David Onley will honour this year's recipients at a reception in Toronto Monday.

► Go to millenniumscholarships.ca for more information.

While in Nairobi, Kenya, with his family, the Stouffville District Secondary School student became involved with Habitat for Humanity.

From a building site in a rural village, Jeremy was able to see the tangible effects of his efforts in the house he was helping to build for a family of parentless children.

While he has been involved in numerous fundraising efforts in Canada, he found the experience of being there, where the results of those distant efforts are materializing, to be a tremendously awe-inspiring thing.

The experience changed his outlook on life, he said. He hopes to continue helping others through a career in medicine.

The foundation received 11,101 applications from students across the country. It awarded 1,052 scholarships. 100 national, 241 provincial and 711 local.

Since 2000, the foundation has given out almost 900,000 bursaries and scholarships worth $2.6 billion to students across Canada.
