anything truly evil by any means."

Whitchurch-Stouffville is one of 20 stops involved in the tour, where he said he hopes to educate, inform and assist people with their ghost issues.

The cost of the lecture is $20 and covers Mr. Bagg's ghost hunting equipment, some of which includes equipment that records audio video and energy in a setting.

"I don't charge people for my services," he added, saying "its very fulfilling from a public service point of view" and he maintains his clients' confidentiality.

As for why he enjoys this unconventional line of work, he said there is more than one reason.

"I've learned about different technology, it's gotten me over my fear of public speaking. It's a great adventure for me. I look forward to it every day and (look forward) to every investigation."
