Visiting family, friends here sold Hutchinsons on Stouffville

"Television news, not many people get into that, are you sure you should do that?"

Mr. Hutchinson was sure. But he didn't get into television broadcasting right away. His first job after graduation was hosting CBC's afternoon drive show in Yellowknife.

Following his stint up north, Mr. Hutchinson toured around Europe before coming back to his home town of Toronto, where he landed a job with CBC national radio news.

WORKED IN YELLOWKNIFE

Always keeping his eye on the prize of a job in television broadcasting, Mr. Hutchinson left CBC radio for his first shot in television at CKND in Winnipeg.

"Back then it was glamorous and interesting and it's still interesting," he said. "The glamour has sort of faded."

After Winnipeg, Mr. Hutchinson went to ITV in Edmonton and then CFCN in Calgary before accepting a general assignment reporter's position with CTV Toronto in 1988.

It was during his stint in Calgary that Mr. Hutchinson, a political junkie, was able to interview United States Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

"I'm sure the questions I asked were ridiculously rudimentary for someone of his stature," Mr. Hutchinson said of the interview that was supposed to last only a couple of minutes, but went on for more than 40 minutes.

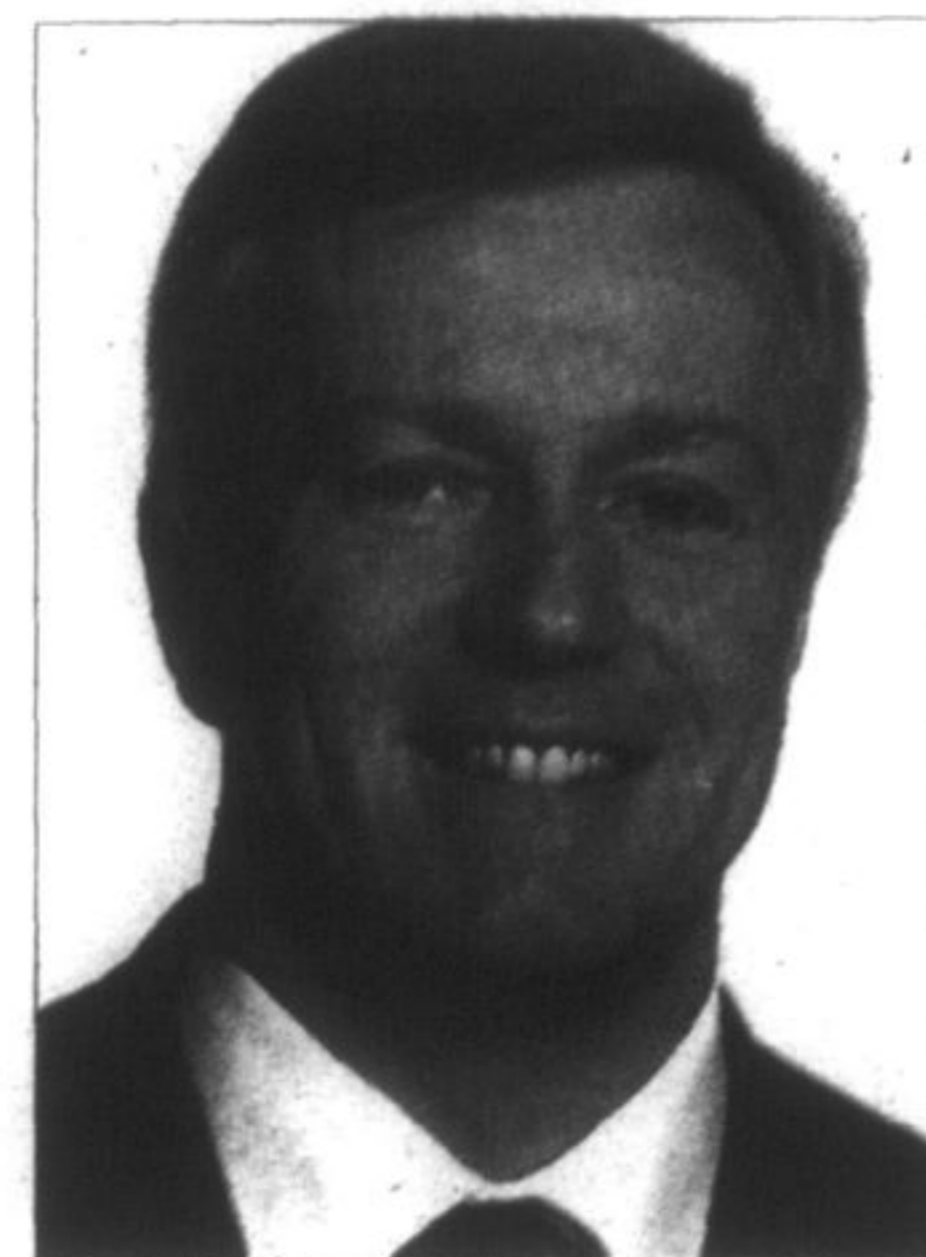

To this day, Mr. Hutchinson's interview with Mr. Kissinger remains a career highlight. But also high on his list of memorable interviews are seven Canadian prime ministers, United States Secretary of State George Schultz and celebrities Demi Moore, Kevin Costner, Danny Devito and Billy Crystal.

Mr. Hutchinson has also covered Canadian visits by Pope John Paul II, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince Phillip and the Aga Khan.

But there is still one person Mr. Hutchinson has yet to interview and if given the chance, he'd be ready: former U.S. president Bill Clinton.

"He's a fascinating guy; I just find him to be a very intelligent guy and (someone with an) interesting perspective on the world," he said.

In his almost 30 years of broadcasting, the 52-year-old has not only interviewed a wide range of people, he's also seen the industry go through an enormous amount of change, with the most dramatic being the immediacy of today's news.

Mr. Hutchinson recalled that he used to have to wrap stories up by 2 p.m. so he could get the film processed and the story packaged together for the 6 p.m. news. Now, news programs use helicopters and remote trucks to get information to people as a situation unfolds.

"I'm not sure it's better," Mr. Hutchinson said, noting the downfall of being able to provide news so quickly is that it doesn't allow the journalist a lot of time to dig deeper into the story and provide viewers with a complete picture of the issue.

The Hutchinson family, which includes wife Kelly, daughter Sarah, 21, and step-son Ryan, 10, moved to Stouffville two years ago after coming to town to visit some friends and family.

'FRIENDLY TOWN'

"It's a friendly town," he said of why the family moved to Stouffville.

Ironically, living just a few doors down the road from Mr. Hutchinson is a former CTV employee.

That, along with hosting a neighbourhood barbecue this past summer has helped the family become members of the Stouffville community.

While most people will no doubt know who Mr. Hutchinson is, he may need to keep his "I am not Tom" T-shirt handy.

This year Mr. Hutchinson will be one of the Heart of Christmas judges. The winner will be announced on Sunday.

'Timmy's a piece of home'

that we loved to do to de-stress. Playing ball hockey on the medical support team was a great stress reliever and another was our almost daily visits to the Tim Hortons on the base. It was like a little piece of home to sit together and chat over a cup of Timmy's; a way to unwind and feel

'normal' for a short time.

Thank you for your generous wishes at Christmastime and we appreciate your continuous support.
